By The Associated Press.

SHANGHAI — Japan wages war on China along 2,000-mile expanse as second month of conflict ends; great Japanese attack along Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers north of Shanghai held to minor gains with heavy losses on both sides; Japanese air bombers kill 200 more Chinese non-combatants along Shanghai's western fringe.

NANKING — U. S. Embassy urges American citizens to evacuate Amoy and Poochow because of Japanese bombardments of those Fukien seaports; authorizes consulates there closed.

HONGKONG — Japanese navy clamps tight blockade on Pearl river, great water highway into South China; seizes two Chinese customs vessels, sinks one; Japanese destroyer drops shells around British passenger ship, makes her turn back to Hongkong; warships bombard many South China ports and inland towns.

Oriental Battle

Into Third Month. SHANGHAI, Sept. 6. (AP)—Japan's war on China dealt death and devastation over a 2,000-mile expanse today, reaching its greatest ferocity on the outskirts of Shanghai itself.

As the conflict reached the end of its second month it had spread from the opening minor skirmish at Marco Polo bridge, west of Peking, to continental proportions. The Japanese army, navy and air force struck with all the strength they could muster along the fronts north of this tortured city in what neutral observers called a major offensive. Chinese lines yielded at some points but did not break, and at the end of a day's bitter fighting the invaders had little to show for their losses. Chinese officers said those losses ran into thousands killed, more than 1,000 at one point, and admitted their own casualties were heavy. Again hundreds of Chinese non-

BREAK IS FEARED IN BLUNT NOTES OF RUSSIA, ITALY

Soviet Government Puts Ship Sinking on Rome; Ill Duce's Aide Hits Back in Rejecting Demands.

By STEWART BROWN.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)
ROME, Sept. 6.—Russia tonight formally accused Fascist Italy of sinking two Soviet ships in the Mediterranean during the recent terrorism of submarine "piracy" and received from Italy a curt reply that threatened an immediate diplomatic break.

The Russian note, delivered to Premier Benito Mussolini's foreign minister and son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, did not identify the torpedoed vessel but demanded indemnity and punishment of those responsible for the warlike attack.

Ciano, after hurried consultation with Mussolini, informed Moscow that the allegation was rejected and that Italy refused to give further consideration to the charge.

"Explosion" Feared. The defiant Italian answer, flatly refusing the Russian claims for satisfaction, was such an open diplomatic rebuff as to carry the threat of an international explosion.

Diplomats said the consequences of the exchange of notes, accomplished within the space of a few hours, might easily be the spark to plunge the nations into war. The Italian-Russian clash—gravest since it came about with full diplomatic formalities—climaxed a week of rising tension as France and Great Britain sought the co-operation of Fascist Italy and Communist Russia in a plan to avert war along the Mediterranean trade routes.

Behind the threat of war lurked two submarine fleets and a maze of military alliances which might conceivably force every major power in Europe into a conflict precipitated by Soviet-Italian anger.

Communism Issued. The official communique, describing the exchange of notes, said:

"The Soviet charge d'affaires in Rome sent a note to the foreign ministry today in which, after declared schools could not collect tuition fees from students, both Wells and Sutton pointed out his ruling does not apply to fees for expendable materials, or those supplies furnished by the schools which are used up during the year.

City and county school children will receive the free textbooks furnished by the State Department of Education under the Rivers free textbook program. Wells said:

"Our fees do not include the free textbooks. The Fulton county school authorities have purchased the necessary supplies and

LONDON IS IRKED BY 'INTERIM' REPLY

'Unusual' Rejoinder Viewed as Prelude to Protracted Negotiations; Britain Is Contradicted.

TOKYO, Sept. 6. (AP)—Japan's reply to Great Britain's protest over the wounding of the British ambassador to China has been delivered to the London government, the foreign office announced tonight.

Previously Foreign Minister Koki Hirota had indicated Japan does not accept the British contention that Sir Hugh Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen was wounded by machine gun bullets from a Japanese airplane. From this observers deduced the reply might not be satisfactory to Britain.

Domei, Japan's national news agency, said that while the Japanese note expresses regret it does not even refer to any of the three demands by the British government.

Governor Rivers Ends 6th In Seven-Man Yacht Race

Georgia Executive Finishes Mile Behind the Winner, White, of Mississippi, Leche, of Louisiana, Second; Kentuckian Only One To Trail Georgian.

By RALPH McGILL.
SOUTHERN YACHT CLUB, NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 6.—Governor Hugh White, of Mississippi, won the governors' yacht race here this afternoon. But the champion was Governor Rivers, of Georgia.

They gave him the greatest greeting in the history of the yacht club, and it is next to the oldest club in this country.

There was a man but a few weeks out of the hospital. As the race time neared, a cold, driving rain blew up in a typical gulf squall. It was cold and intensely wet. Each drop of rain seemed to have a quart of water in it. In fact, Mr. Bill Brigandine, who is used to bottling eight ounces of soft drink in each bottle, said that each drop contained 24 ounces.

It was a storm. I was watching through a pair of wet field glasses. And saw Ed Rivers stand up and strip off his shirt. They ruled there would be no proxies. And so Admiral Andrew A. Smith, the vanguard of Savannah, Ga., was in the boat, but the Governor had to handle the tiller. Ed Rivers, who just a few weeks ago was warned he would have to be very careful indeed of his health, stripped of his shirt and went to work.

He finished sixth. But the luck of the draw gave him the Lady Lou, a boat noted as the slowest boat in the Louisiana fleet. That was bad luck. And when a party of holiday sailors got in the way and made Ed Rivers and his crew next to last across the line, that didn't help any. But for five miles of the six-mile race the Georgia Governor was fourth. It was not until the last 100 yards that Gordon Browning, of Tennessee, with one of the faster boats, managed to get ahead of the Georgia sloop.

When the race was done, the Governors, all of them with chattering teeth and goose-pimpled skins, came in, I got to Governor Ed Rivers and said: "Governor, you are a real champion. A lesser man would have withdrawn."

"Well," he said, "I came down here for the fellowship with these other governors. I think it is a nice affair. It is fun. I know I shouldn't go out there, but after all, I was here. So, I went."

By this time a doctor had arrived to check over Governor Rivers for traces of pneumonia and fever. He found him in good shape.

"You know," said Ed Rivers, "I got a kick out of all that. Lots of times I wanted to get out and push, but I couldn't."

And now back to the race. Briefly the history of it is this. Last year Governor White and Governor Dick Leche, of Louisiana, raced their sloops. They are not yachts. They merely call it a yacht race. White won. This year they got together and invited all southern governors. Ed Rivers made it a time to talk the freight differentials and have a conference on the subject.

Georgia Sixth. Hugh White won. This caused the Louisiana people to perish. It was twice in a row, James A. Alford, of Texas, finished third. Gordon Browning, greatly to his own Labor Feud Fanned by Green as Perkins Reports Increases During Year.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (AP)—Labor Day brought a renewal of the feud between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

William Green, president of the federation, accused the CIO of "welcoming communistic support and methods," and upbraided it for disrupting the labor movement. He spoke at Dallas, Texas.

The CIO chief, John L. Lewis, speaking meanwhile in western Pennsylvania, ignored the row with the federation to warn the workers there that unless they have the protection of organization, new machines will rapidly displace them.

Perkins Cites Gains. Secretary Perkins speaking by radio from Washington, reported that "some 2,000,000 more wage earners have jobs in regular non-agricultural employment this Labor Day than a year ago, with ap-

Dewey Johnson Assails Organization as Communist; Other Cities of State in Celebrations

Labor has made marked progress despite sharp dissension within its own ranks, labor leaders of both factions declared yesterday as Atlanta and Georgia joined in the nation-wide tribute to the workingman and woman.

The split between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee on Industrial Organization was shown to Atlantans when all CIO organizations were barred from the Labor Day parade sponsored by the AFL.

Missing From Ranks. Missing from the ranks of the parade were the two organizations of public school teachers, which include teachers in both city and county schools.

In the past these organizations have enlisted a strong representation in Labor Day parades, often having colorful floats.

Also absent were representatives of the Typographical Union, stereotypers, web pressmen and engravers, the single delegation of the allied printing trades being members of the job printing pressmen group.

The absent groups are not enrolled as affiliates of the CIO.

Thousands lined downtown streets to watch other thousands parade in the Atlanta parade which was the feature of the celebration in Georgia's capital.

Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, delivered a scathing denunciation of John L. Lewis, head of CIO, in an early morning radio broadcast.

BANKHEAD SCORES 9-CENT LINT LOANS

Alabama Senator Charges 'Theorists' Seeking To Push Cotton Downward.

JASPER, Ala., Sept. 6. (AP)—Government "theorists" were charged by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, today with a "deliberate effort" to lower cotton prices as southern farm groups sought a way to bolster growers' returns from the staple.

Bankhead, disappointed that the federal price-pegging plan did not offer loans of 10 cents a pound on cotton and that adjustment payments will be made only on 65 per cent of base production, urged farmers to put their cotton in a holding pool financed by the government 9-cent loans to await better prices.

Theory Attacked. "The loan plan," he charged, "was worked out by departmental theorists to accomplish two definite objectives: First—to reduce the price so as to bring about larger export of cotton; second—to make the loan so unattractive that few farmers would put cotton under a government loan."

A spokesman for Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in Washington replied with the assertion that the sole purpose of the loan-subsidy program was "to increase the income of the cotton farmer."

"Loans," the spokesman added, "were made low enough to allow cotton to move freely in trade. We have found that when loans are fixed too high the government accumulates cotton, exports are re-

SECOND OUSTER LOOMING IN BIBB

Rivers Reiterates His Intention To Continue Dismissals in Effort To Halt Escapes Parade.

First application of Governor Rivers' sweeping order to halt Georgia's chain gang escape scandal yesterday brought:

1.—Dismissal of the Hall county warden and a convict guard after escape of three white convicts.

2.—Surrender of all felony convicts by Hall county and request for immediate transfer.

3.—Reiteration by Prison Commission Chairman G. A. Johns that Governor Rivers' orders to dismiss wardens and guards involved in chain gang escapes are "going to be carried out strictly."

4.—Impending dismissal of Warden Mike Byrd, of the Bibb county gang, from which a negro escaped.

Warden, Guard Ousted. Hall County Warden T. Elmore Warf and Guard Solon Walker were discharged yesterday by Chairman Johns, becoming the first official casualties from Governor Rivers' "stop those escapes" order.

Immediately following notification of Warf's dismissal, the Hall county commission met at the camp and sent a telegram to the prison commission surrendering all felony prisoners in the Hall chain gang and asking immediate instructions for disposition.

"All felony convicts now assigned to Hall county are now subject to your immediate disposition. Wire once your instructions as to place."

Severance of Relations. The virtual severance of diplomatic relations with the state prison commission was decided, the commissioners unanimously said, because "under the circumstances" the county is not in a position to care for its present felony colony of 31.

Chairman Johns said that Warden Byrd and a guard at the Bibb county camp from which the negro escaped Sunday night would be dismissed "as quickly as arrangements can be made."

"Governor Rivers' orders on the dismissal of wardens and guards involved in chain gang escapes are going to be carried out strictly," Chairman Johns said.

Warden Warf was removed personally by Chairman Johns. Johns motored to Gainesville to dismiss Warf and appoint Guard J. H. McGuire as his successor. The dismissal was effective immediately.

Governor Rivers' sanction of the dismissal was a foregone conclusion for he reiterated at New Orleans that automatic dismissal awaited wardens and guards involved in gang escapes.

Declared Routine Matter. "After the recent executive order, the action of the prison commission is merely a routine matter," Governor Rivers told a Constitution reporter at New Orleans.

"I realize the action is severe, but in my judgment it must be, for a time, at least, carried out so that a stamp may be put to these escapes. The cases are routine and will have my sanction as soon as I return."

Thorough investigation of the alleged wild automobile chase Sunday afternoon by two city policemen will be launched today by Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, he said yesterday as city officials reiterated condemnation of reckless driving by city officers.

BUILDING IN DIXIE NEARS RECORD HIGH

Construction Awards for First Eight Months Top Half Billion Dollars.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 6.—(AP) Construction awards in southern states exceeding any year since 1930 were shown today in a survey of building contracts by the Manufacturers' Record.

Awards totaled $578,468,000 for the first eight months of the year, and "more than equaled the total for the same period of 1936," the magazine said.

August's total of $71,298,000 for all types of construction fell off slightly from the figures for July, but represented an increase over the corresponding month of 1936.

Industrial and engineering awards topped the total for the month with contracts aggregating $26,072,000.

Public projects included $17,794,000 for roads, streets, paving and bridges, while public building contracts included $6,149,000 of city, state, county and federal projects and $4,703,000 for schools.

Law Is 'An Attribute of Deity,' Justice Jenkins Tells Ministers

Any Legal Act Not in Harmony With It Is Bad, Associate Jurist Says; Preachers Told of Functions as Regards Civilization.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON,
President Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association.

"Law is an attribute of Deity, and any law, not in harmony with the attributes of Deity, is, in my opinion, a bad law," said Associate Justice W. Frank Jenkins of the supreme court of Georgia in an address to the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association yesterday morning, speaking on the "Preacher and the Lawyer" in a series of programs for September built around the idea of "Building a Better World."

"Order is Heaven's first law, and it is the purpose of law to maintain and protect civil society, of which it is the creature, and to provide that every one shall have the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," said Judge Jenkins.

"You, as preachers, once held the function of lawyers under the Theocracy, but today when we live under the dispensation of Grace, you have a yet higher function. The preacher persuades, the law coerces; the preacher leads, the law drives, the preacher teaches men to be holy, the law compels men to be just, the preacher pleads with men to give, the law forces men to pay.

Doesn't Promote Religion.
"The law does not, or should not, promote religion, but it is the Kansas City, Mo.—A newer rupture method developed by a doctor is so successful he offers to give every ruptured man or woman who tries it, a $3.50 truss free. It does away with leg straps, elastic belts, binding springs and harsh pads. After using it, many have reported their ruptures better. Often in a very short time. Others say they no longer need any support. The method will be sent on 30 days' trial and he will send the $3.50 truss free with it. If the method does not help your rupture return it and keep the $3.50 truss for your trouble. If you are ruptured just write E. O. Koch, 1227 Koch Bldg., 2906 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., for his trial offer.

"Thank God, this idea of liberty within the law marches on. Wherever men have sought to destroy the idea, struggle has followed and the idea has prevailed, as may be illustrated in the instances of Charles I and James II. Our conception of civilization guarantees the right to the pursuit of happiness with equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

World Getting Better.
"While there are many problems before us today as a nation and as a world—problems growing out of disregard for God's eternal law of right and wrong—I am of those who firmly believe that righteousness is in the ascendancy—that men and women and little children are the most valuable creatures in this earth and that their rights and their development must ever come first in the plans and purposes of right-thinking people.

"I repeat, that law is civilization, and the price of civilization is eternal vigilance. No law can be enforced that does not have back of it an aroused and confirmed public opinion. The preacher can do much to forward civilization as he points to the unchanging principles of right and wrong—principles enunciated by God in the Ten Commandments and interpreted in the words of Jesus when He taught all men to love God with all their minds and strength and their neighbors as themselves, declaring that we should do unto others as we would that others do unto us.

Keep on Preaching.
"Keep on preaching the gospel that redeems men from sin. Keep on telling discouraged souls that they are made in the image of God—that God is love and that He is a God of law—and you may rest assured that the lawyers, with very few exceptions, will stand with you, upholding your hands in the common task of trying to build a better world," said Judge Jenkins.

Work Hand in Hand.
"It is well that the preacher and the lawyer work hand in hand in trying to build a better world, for whenever you teach men to love life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness, you are strengthening the hands of the lawyer as he seeks to throw about every such citizen the rightful protection and encouragement of his government.

"The world is slowly emerging from the shackles of savagery, where the strongest man held sway—emerging according to law—for remember ever that there is no liberty apart from law. After the overthrow of Roman law, the world suffered a period of retrogression until England gave the world its Magna Charter, and our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution are but further applications of the basic doctrine that every man must have the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Clara Bow Vows Horse-Riding Jr. Won't Be Actor

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—(AP)—There will be no Hollywood bright lights for the son of Clara Bow—the film's flaming Mamie of a gone decade.

"I wouldn't want him to become a Hollywood kid," said the one-time Brooklyn red-head who chucked the movies to become a ranch wife in the sagebrush—and likes it.

"That's the main reason I'll never live here again."

In fact three-year-old Rex Bell Jr. is about the principal reason Clara shook the tinsel out of her hair and took up life on a 600,000-acre ranch near Searchlight, Nev.

"Gee, he's cute," she exclaimed. "Looks just like his pa. He's happy on the ranch and he rides like a veteran, without being strapped to the saddle. He isn't afraid of anything, not even rattlesnakes, of which we have plenty."

Clara is back in town now—the town that brought her fame and fortune—and headaches and heartaches, too—but only for a breather and to associate herself with a cast and bar to pick up a few loose tourist dollars.

I'd like to show that I can act. I'd like to do one great picture and then quit for good. But I never will make a picture just to get a salary."

Clara says studios have submitted dozens of stories to her, but none met her fancy.

ANSWER:

THEY SMOKE MORE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE IN THE WORLD

"Camels went 'round the world with me. I'll bet on them any time," famous round-the-world reporter, Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, says. "With Camels, steady smoking's a steady pleasure."

"I have a long record as a Camel smoker—I've smoked them for many years," Bill Tilden states. "Here's one big point I'd like to make about Camels—they're the cigarette that I've found doesn't upset my nerves."

"To me, Camels mean 'Cheer' with a capital 'C'—the famous motorboat sportsman, George Reis, says. "I also like Camel's heavy flavor. And I like the quick 'lift' I get with a Camel after I've been through a tough race."

Men and women respond to the unadorned fact that costlier tobaccos play the most important part in making Camel Cigarettes milder and better.

THE deeper you dig into the facts—the more you find that real mildness and real flavor must be grown into cigarette tobaccos. Nothing man can do to inferior tobaccos can take the place of good tobaccos to start with. As you'd expect, naturally milder, better-tasting tobaccos cost more to buy. And Camel willingly pays millions more year in and year out to get them. That's why Camels are different—why they appeal more to men and women in all walks of life—why they're the largest-selling cigarette in America—or in the world!

Camels don't tire your taste—there is no "cigarette" after-taste to Camels, no matter how many you smoke. In fact, Camels open the door to all-around smoking pleasure.

"So many girls at college smoke Camels," says Miss Josephine O'Neill, co-ed. "Mental work often has an effect on digestion. I find that Camels help make food seem twice as good."

"I've been enjoying and reaping the benefit of Camel's extra mildness for years," the famous parachute jumper, Joe Crane, begins. "And I mean that I smoke plenty of Camels. I've smoked enough of them to prove that Camels don't frazzle your nerves. Flavor? Well, I'd walk a mile for a Camel! You can't beat 'em for real, downright goodness."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS... IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending of leaf with leaf brings out the full delicate flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos. That's why Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette.

ONE KILLED, 21 HURT IN OIL TANK BLAST; FIRE MENACES MILL

Twelve Carried to Hospital
After Explosion Rocks
Edison Building.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—An oil separation tank on which a repair crew was at work exploded tonight in the Astoria plant of the Consolidated Edison Company, killing one man, and injuring 21 others.

The dead man, Oscar Hines, 30, was blown several hundred feet by the blast, which occurred as repairmen were replacing top plates on the tank, 150 feet high and 70 feet in diameter.

Twelve members of the crew were taken to Queens hospital suffering from burns and shock, while the remaining injured were treated inside the plant.

Investigators said the cause of the blast, which was heard across the East river in Upper Manhattan and attracted a fire boat and two companies of firemen, was not determined. One report said the contents of the huge tank ignited from a blow-torch used in making repairs.

Fire which followed the explosion was quickly extinguished.

HORNSBY TO HOLD AUTO CHASE QUIZ

National bank branch office after wrecking several other automobiles during the chase. The driver and another man already arrested by Avery and Sutherland escaped.

Councilmen John A. White and John T. Marler yesterday again declared that wild chases by police cars through crowded city streets must be stopped.

"Such wild and reckless chases are utterly ridiculous," Councilman White asserted.

"I know the difficulty in which officers find themselves when they see a speeding liquor or 'bug' car but it is not worth the price of killing even one innocent bystander to catch these minor offenders."

"These wild chases must be stopped and I think that Chief Hornsby is the man who can do it," White said.

Councilman Marler said the matter is entirely with the chief, so far as he is concerned. Marler is a member of the police committee.

"I personally do not approve of risking killing innocent persons just to catch a misdemeanor offender, but whatever is needed to be done will be done by Chief Hornsby," he declared.

Other councilmen and city officials likewise joined in condemnation of wild and reckless chases by either city or county police.

The grand jury has, on several occasions, drawn attention to the danger to the public when cars speed 60 and 70 miles per hour through crowded streets in pursuit of a suspected liquor or lottery car.

Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, has been outspoken in criticizing officers who endanger the public with their automobiles.

Policemen themselves said yesterday that "we are on the spot" in this connection. They are duty bound to apprehend and arrest all lawbreakers, they pointed out, but can hardly do so when the offenders can escape merely by exceeding the speed laws while the officers can not speed.

Federals Endangered.

They pointed out also that many pedestrians and motorists are endangered by speeding liquor and lottery cars when they are not being chased by police.

"Lottery cars, especially, fly through crowded city streets at a time when the day's traffic is heavy," said one officer. "They are taking the 'bug' numbers to headquarters and frequently speed over red lights and stop signs with no regard at all for the public."

The chase through the North Side Sunday afternoon aroused hundreds of residents of that area and calls protesting the action of the city police in recklessly pursuing the liquor car flooded the police station Sunday night and yesterday.

Chief Hornsby has repeatedly warned his men not to take reckless chances with the public in chasing any offenders. Mayor Hartfield, while realizing the difficulty faced by the police in such situation, also has condemned reckless pursuits that endanger the lives of the public.

Hornsby pointed out yesterday that Sunday's chase was the first one reported in months in which city officers were involved.

U. S. To Be Represented.

(A one-day visit by Prentiss B. Gilbert, the American chargé d'affaires, has received full sanction of the State Department, despite objections from U. S. Ambassador William E. Dodd, who is in the United States.)

This was the first time in the congress' brief history that Der Fuehrer's arrival time had been announced in advance, along with the route of his ride.

Loudspeakers repeatedly blared the announcement, urging that the crowds turn out for a rousing reception.

The streets were lined with fair-sized throngs when Hitler finally appeared.

GAIN OF 2,000,000 IN WORKERS CITED

approximately 1,000,000 of these being employed in the factories all over this broad land.

Governor Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, told an Omaha audience that there would be a new political alignment by 1940, that a realignment of parties has already begun and will "continue until reactionaries are in one camp and progressives in another."

Green characterized the CIO as a "new foe" which labor is forced to fight at a period of its deepest concern over unemployment and other economic questions.

"It seems almost unbelievable," he said, "that any group which professes to believe in the unity and solidarity of labor would deliberately create a split in the organized labor movement."

Recalls Split.

"Two years ago a minority which could not force or compel the majority in a convention to accept its will formed a dual organization. They called themselves the Committee for Industrial Organization. This dual movement has been praised and supported by the spokesmen of the Communist party. The representatives of this subversive movement have placed their stamp of approval upon the CIO."

"This development creates the issue. It marks the difference between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization."

"The American Federation of Labor will have nothing to do with Communism, communistic teachings or communistic philosophy. We stand now as we always have stood, as a barrier to any advance which the Communists may seek to make within the ranks of labor."

Lewis told his audience that the problem of unemployment had not been solved, that "improved methods of production have created conditions which make for more unemployment, that 'more and more machinery is being installed to lay idle human hands." He added:

"There is but one answer—an everlasting participation of workers through organizing in combating this situation."

Lewis Welcomes Foes.

Without referring to the AFL, he said that he welcomed opposition and added that while craft workers have been organized for 50 years, nothing had been done to reach the masses.

"The CIO, this great organization of labor, is the only instrumentality which can successfully deal with mass industry today."

Miss Perkins dwelt at length upon what she called the "problem of the older workers," asserting that the disposition of industry to employ only younger men had become "a menace and a terror to thousands" of workers.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES SUPPORT F. D. R. ANTI-STRIKE STAND SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Representatives of the 75,000 members of the National Federation of Federal Employees supported President Roosevelt today in his expressed view that government workers should not strike.

Mr. Roosevelt told the convention delegates in a message that although organizations of government employees "have a logical place" in government affairs, their "obligation to serve the whole people" made the militant tactics of strikes "unthinkable and intolerable."

250,000 CHEER LEWIS AS POTENTIAL U. S. PRESIDENT

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6.—(UP)—John L. Lewis came to this highly industrialized district today to deliver a stinging attack on "industrial autocrats who oppose labor," and a minute after he stepped down from the speaker's platform, heard his name cheered by 250,000 persons as a potential "President of the United States."

He stepped back from the speaker's table to join his wife when Judge M. A. Musmanno, one of the scheduled speakers, stepped forward to the table. Musmanno was unable to speak directly because of a throat ailment, but handed a statement to the chairman. It said:

"I am looking forward to the day when John L. Lewis will not only be President of the United Mine Workers, but President of the United States."

STATE JUSTICES READY TO FACE HEAVY DOCKETS

Georgia Supreme Court To Begin Fall Term; New Deal Cases Lead.

The six justices of Georgia's supreme court will end a one-month recess next week to turn to a heavy docket entwined vitally with practically every phase of the state's "New Deal" laws.

Slated for argument Tuesday, the Atlanta bond refunding case tests validity of the June 8 election at which 21 constitutional amendments were ratified by voters of the state.

Involving directly only one amendment—that permitting Atlanta to refund its bonded debt—the case indirectly bears on old age pensions, intangible taxes, homestead exemptions and other "New Deal" laws and pending laws based on other amendments adopted at the same election.

Atlanta refunded $2,000,000 worth of its bonds under authority of one of the 21 amendments. Citizens attacked the action, drawing into question the validity of the election as one for submission of amendments to the voters.

Same Issue Raised.
The same issue is raised in another case which the court has under advisement. Franklin county taxpayers prior to the election date sought to enjoin expenditure of public monies for holding the election, created as a "general election" by the 1937 general assembly.

State attorneys contended in arguing the Franklin case the issues were "moot" since the election already had been held and the money sought to be held up had been spent.

The court also will have before it next week a case testing validity of the state milk control law, which created a board to take charge of milk competitive practices in any area wherein a majority of dairymen favored the law.

Sided With Board.
The case arose from the complaint of an Atlanta consumer who attacked price regulatory powers of the board. The lower court sided with the milk board.

Likewise on next week's docket is the case involving judgment of the Cherokee superior courts. Judge Claude C. Pittman, the incumbent, declined to enter the June 8 election, holding the legislature had no right to call for the filling of vacancies at an election other than that provided by the constitution.

He contended also there was no vacancy in his office, he having held over after death of his elected successor pending a filling of the vacancy at a general election in November.

Had No Opposition.
John C. Mitchell, of Dalton, however, offered for the post and without opposition, was elected. He started quo warranto proceedings to take the office from Pittman, but Superior Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton county, dismissed his petition.

This case does not involve legality of constitutional amendment voters at the June 8 election, all contestants agree.

HUNT CONTINUED FOR SURF VICTIM

Body of Julian W. Prance
Not Yet Recovered.

Search for the body of Julian W. Prance, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Prance, of College Park, drowned Sunday night at Savannah Beach, was still under way last night, relatives reported.

Young Prance was swimming in the surf with two friends when he was apparently caught in an undertow, his aunt, Mrs. Henry Pounds, of Atlanta, said.

His father is supervisor of school planning and construction with the State Department of Education. He moved to Atlanta this year from Americus, where for 20 years he was superintendent of the Georgia Southeastern College.

The son was born on the college campus, and, after completing high school, was graduated at the college in 1932. He took his bachelor of arts degree at Mercer University in 1934 and was a teacher in the Willacoochee High school during 1935. He was a salesman with a typewriter company in Savannah at the time of his death, relatives said.

His brother, Jack, and a sister, Mrs. Nell Alfriend, went to Savannah Beach yesterday to aid in the search for the body. Another sister, Miss Patricia Prance, resides in College Park also.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN

While America watches developments in the unofficial war in China with renewed determination to hold firmly to the line of neutrality, Britain looks on with far greater trepidation and stands in the center of an international situation fraught with delicate circumstances and filled with serious possibilities. Britain's interests, not only in China, but in the Far East, are immeasurably greater than those of the United States.

In the first place, the British commercial commitments in South China are very great. All down the Yangtze valley are the outposts of her industry and trade, while her great port of Hong Kong is the ocean gateway to Kwangsi, Kwangtung and ever farther interior provinces. But it is the possible extension of Japanese influence southward and over the entire east that touches the most sensitive spot in British diplomacy. In the first place, she would hardly look on unmoved to Japanese penetration of the East Indies, and, secondly, the Japanese doctrine of Asia for the Asiatics does not fit well with British policy in India, Burma, Ceylon and Malaya.

According to a book titled "If War Comes," written by an American army officer, Major R. Ernest Dupuy, in collaboration with a former officer of the military intelligence reserve, Major George Fielding Elliot, soon to be published by the Macmillan Company, the sentinel for Britain at the cross roads of Asia is the heavily fortified naval base of Singapore. Hong Kong, in a military sense, is described as an advance base for Singapore and the line between these strongholds is held to be the vital line of British operations in the Far East.

Thus it is seen, if Hong Kong is not to be dangerously isolated, it must be supported. Britain is now building that support. She has, it is reported, erected heavy fortifications at Brunel, in British Borneo, which flanks the line to the east, while, to the west, British interests have recently secured concessions for "development work" on the Chinese island of Hainan. It is also hinted that "harbor works" are planned in the Parcel Islands, in the South China sea, directly on the Hong Kong-Singapore steamer lane.

France, too, Britain's ally, is erecting a large naval and air base in French Indo-China.

In case of a clash with Britain, Japan's advance naval and aviation base would be at Formosa, southward some 800 miles from Nagasaki.

The British China squadron boasts no heavily armored ships. It includes several cruisers, a destroyer flotilla, a cruiser-mine layer, an aircraft carrier and a large submarine force. Such a force could not successfully face the Japanese grand fleet in sea action, but, backed by shore-based aircraft, could operate effectively until reinforcements arrived from the East Indies squadron and from Australia and New Zealand. These forces, in turn, could probably defend the Singapore-Hong Kong line until the main British battle fleet could arrive on the scene.

Summing up the relative strength of the two nations, the authors of the new book say:

"For Japan, penetration of the South China sea in the teeth of a hostile Britain, a few years ago a problem presenting little difficulty save that of distance, is today fraught with very grave risks and tomorrow may be all but impossible."

THE ARMY OF SAFETY

When the 26th National Safety Congress and Exposition, sponsored by the National Safety Council, convenes in Kansas City on October 11 it is expected 10,000 delegates from all parts of the nation will be present.

The gathering will continue through October 15, with 113 sessions devoted to every conceivable phase of safety on the program and with more than 400 outstanding men and women listed as speakers.

That this army of enthusiasts faces a devastating enemy is evident when it is remembered that accidents of all kinds killed 111,000 and injured more than 10,000,000 people in America in 1936.

Investigatory committees which have been at work the past year on problems of highway and street traffic will report and make recommendations, while other groups will discuss specific topics as after-work accidents, agricultural safety, fire prevention, industrial dusts, community safety organizations, health service in industry, pressure vessels and other subjects. The industrial division alone has been subdivided into 30 sections for specific industrial groups.

The most prolific source of accidents in modern life is the home. Special attention will be paid to safety in the homes.

Great progress has been made in recent years in the drive to reduce accidents and render life in America safer. That there is still much to be done is evident. The Safety Congress at Kansas City in October should contribute much to this cause and send each of its 10,000 delegates home with new inspiration as a crusader in the war against unnecessary tragedy.

HOW GULLIBLE THESE MORTALS BE

Man, it seems, cannot live content without some cure-all to which to pin his fanatic faith. In all the world's history there has ever been some concocted theory to hold out to mankind the hope of a universal panacea for all his woes at the end of the rainbow of dreams.

In the realms of synthetic knowledge many now living can remember the day when the conformation of the skull was supposed to reveal, to the expert practitioner, all that was to be known about any individual. They called it the science of phrenology.

Mesmerism, at one stage in the world's history, was the idol of optimistic belief of millions. Today, judging by headlines in the more lurid publications which cater to ignorance, astrology, that hangover from the middle ages, is enjoying a brief day of ascendancy among the gullible. Probably this fad will be followed by a revival in faith in the philosophers' stone, a new search for successful transmutation of metals, dreams of synthetic diamonds and a return to blood-letting as the universal cure for man's bodily ills.

Sad as are the results of human gullibility in such individual affairs of life, sadder still is the disruption that follows when popular belief in some fantastic scheme for the cure of political and social ills reaches the stage where it dominates the ballot box and the halls of legislation. Then, for a passing while, all suffer in the role of guinea pigs for economic experimentation.

Fortunately, like the fads of other nature, political fads pass away after their little day in the limelight. Fascism, Nazism, Sovietism, Communism are but passing phantasies. As they came so must they go. The only economic and social truths that survive are the eternal love of liberty in the heart of man and the everlasting faith in a loving God within his soul.

TELEPHONE ETIQUETTE

A book intended to teach courtesy in telephoning, recently published by the New York City Telephone Company, sets forth that it is not good manners, when answering a call, to lift the receiver and merely say "Hello."

According to this Emily Post of oral communication, the proper phrase, if the call is to the home, thus coming under the social classification, is, "Mary Smith speaking." If it is a call to a business establishment, the response should be, it is said, something like, "Boodlee, Buncombe, Boodle & Boodle, Attorneys," or "Jimson's, Inc., Pins and Pickles."

If it is a call to a home and the maid, or some other servant, answers, the response should be, "Mrs. Smith's residence."

That is all very well and undoubtedly the telephonic experts on etiquette know whereof they speak. But they forget one important consideration. That is the question of "advantage," as it were, in the incipient phone conversation. If the receiver immediately volunteers the information as to his identity, he gives the caller the opportunity to say whatever he pleases, with no recourse to the convenient fib. If the same receiver merely says "Hello," it is up to the caller to identify himself and then the receiver, if he fears a verbal chastisement for something resting uneasy on his conscience, or if he knows a dun for money past due or a plea for a loan is coming, can conveniently dodge the situation by a slight change in voice and the words, "Sorry, you've got the wrong number," ere he hangs up again.

Despite etiquette, it is to be feared that the anonymous, tentative "Hello" will continue to be used by timorous souls who prefer to know who is calling before announcing their identity.

Some restaurants are now listing on their menus "Petite pomme noir d'amour," which, translated, means "little black apple of love." But prunes they are and prunes they'll always be, to us.

Cats are said to have the same number of bones in their bodies as humans. But cats take much better care of them.

The smallest tree in the world is the cupressus obtusa tetragona minima. It bears no fruit, but who'd expect it to do more than bear up under a name like that?

Newspaper headline writers are rumored preparing a stiff note of protest to the Grecian government. That country has decided to change the name of the city of Saloniki to Thessalonika.

Maybe the reason so many wives prefer the seashore to the mountains as vacation site is because it's too difficult to get in the last word with a mountain echo.

Editorial of the Day

GUFFEY, LEWIS, ROOSEVELT SPEAK

(From The Charleston News and Courier)
About the same time that Mr. Roosevelt was preaching democracy to the south, Senator Guffey, John Lewis and others were shouting against the southern congressmen, saying that they should be "disciplined."

If they impose democracy on the south the south will be "disciplined." To do that would be much easier now than it was in the 1870s. Then the northern democrats ("little d" democrats, mind) tried to coerce the south. They failed. Now the game is to buy it. It is a much smoother game.

In 1876 native white Republicans were called "Scalawags." Among 80,000 white men of South Carolina they numbered 500, or 800, not more. Outside of the military, white federal office-holders, carpetbaggers and negroes included, were only a few hundred.

On the federal pay rolls in South Carolina now are at least 10,000 persons, maybe 15,000—only the Lord knows how many. (You can't find out their number or names.)

When Guffey and Lewis begin to "discipline" the south these will be called "Democrats"—with a big "D"—for Guffey, Lewis and their crowd control and boss the party that is called "Democratic." It can buy, it is buying, the southern negro, too.

When Guffey was reading Burke, Wheeler, O'Mahoney and Holt out of the Democratic party he meant Walter George, Josiah Bailey, E. D. Smith and Tom Connally, too.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

HOT POTATO WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—There is a red-hot potato spoiling the varnish on the desk of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles which may well have caused him to embark with additional speed on his European vacation.

The sizzling tuber that he skilfully avoided was the draft of a treaty with Mexico, suggested by Senators Sheppard and Connally, of Texas, but carefully guarded from the public eye. It was dropped on the undersecretary's desk just as he turned the key, and there it lies.

Back of this suggested treaty is a story reminiscent of the lurid dramas of the early west, where strong men fought it out over rights to the desert water holes. So far, the significant details have reached only a few ears, but by the time congress convenes again, a loud explosion is promised.

The situation arises over a three-cornered fight among the Mexicans, the Texans of the lower Rio Grande valley and the folks in Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California, whose fields are irrigated by the Boulder dam project of the Colorado river.

The Mexicans say that they aren't getting their share of the Rio Grande, which, since it's a bordering stream, is in part theirs.

They say they will be satisfied, however, if they are provided with 7,000,000 acre-feet of water from the Boulder dam project.

MEXICANS ACT The westerners can't see that at all. They say that it would jeopardize their project if more than a million feet were spared.

The Texans claim the Mexicans have taken direct action to force the issue. That is what has caused the Texas farmers of the southern Rio Grande valley to rise in their wrath.

They say this action consists in part of the digging of a canal lower than the level of the Rio Grande which threatens to drain the "garden spot" of Texas and turn it back to a desert.

Some see in the Mexicans' sudden activity in this particular region a political move to obtain accession to their demands concerning the Boulder dam project.

But whatever the motive, the Texans, visioning the loss of their farms, moved on Washington with a husky delegation yelling for action to stop the Mexicans from running away with their water supply. The State Department attempted to avoid a conference, but after meeting with Vice President Garner, the delegation received an appointment with Secretary Hull. The latter tried to soft pedal the whole business, reaching the painful political possibilities of a clash between the southwest and the west.

WON'T SHUSH However, they wouldn't be shushed. Mr. Hull was informed by the delegates that among the pioneers who settled the Rio Grande valley if they were threatened with the loss of their homes.

They dared to insist on the possibility of an international incident and asked for immediate negotiation of a treaty with Mexico and suggested that Sumner Welles, noted for his mediations in Cuba, take up the question immediately.

The secretary finally capitulated and put the matter in the hands of his undersecretary.

Mr. Welles immediately departed for Europe, and, until he returns, the document drawn obviously to palliate Mexico, but hardly in line with western senators' ideas, lies a-smouldering on his desk.

Meanwhile, the men at the water hole are oiling their political guns.

MIDDLE-AGED WORKER When Secretary of Labor Perkins, in a radio address on Labor Day fixed the hiring age limit at 45, "threatens our social structure," she gave a hint that the casual listener probably missed.

The youth of the land and the man over 65, she pointed out, have been taken care of by the CCC and the social security act, but many workers between 45 and 65 are still uncared for.

While Miss Perkins stated the fact, she didn't say what was to be done about it. While it hasn't been announced as yet, there is a hint that, before the year is over, there may be a conference on the plight of the worker 45 years and older.

This proposed gathering would be composed of representatives of government (including, in all probability, members of the Social Security Board), industry and labor.

And if labor has its way, it is quite probable that definite suggestions for legislation to take care of the middle-aged worker who can't get a job will be suggested.

CHINESE OBJECTED Those who claim they've had their ear to the key hole of the negotiations at the Shanghai conference, which moved away from the vicinity of the International Settlement say that Japan would have been only too willing.

But the Chinese felt otherwise. They charged that the Japanese were again using their concession as a base.

Trends of ## Tourist Travel.

The American Automobile Association has compiled a booklet entitled "Americans on the Highway" which is crammed with interesting statistics about the transportation and vacation habits of Americans. In fact, it might reasonably be called "Why We Ride Around as We Do."

In the first place they say that almost one-half of the total automobile registration in the nation went on vacation tours in 1936. Approximately 12,000,000 wheeled units went a-touring over the million miles of paved highways the nation boasts.

Then as to seasonal trends. The big trek begins simultaneously with the appearance of the first robin. From early spring until early fall the touring army is on full hegeia.

After the close of the long-distance touring season in the late of mid-September comes a period of shorter tours, with the week-end trip predominant. Chiefly to see the countryside in all the glory of autumn coloring.

Then comes a lull. Followed by a new spurt of winter touring, becoming more popular year by year as the comfort of modern, enclosed automobiles increases. These are partly dwellers from the north seeking gentler climate for the winter months and that rapidly growing crowd of enthusiasts for ice-skating, skiing, tobogganing and other winter sports.

In late winter there is another lull, quickly broken by the re-starting of the cycle of the tourist year.

How Much

Do Tourists Spend?

Vacation expenditures per individual, it is stated, average slightly more than $100. This means that tourists in 1936, counting 12,000,000 cars, carrying on an average 1.2 persons per car, spent on their vacations $4,250,000,000. Quite a sum.

As to what portion of the United States is most popular as an automobile vacation section, there are many factors. One of the most important is accessibility, which is the reason why so many vacation in the highly populated New England and New York. A questionnaire revealed the largest group, 34.4 per cent, voicing preference for these states.

The next in popularity is the western states, with 19.1 per cent. This includes all territory from the Rocky mountains to the west coast.

Third comes our own south, including Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, with 13.7 per cent. The middle Atlantic states, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the Carolinas lure 12.9 per cent. The Great Lakes and Ohio river valley attracts 9.6 per cent, the North Central States 6.6 per cent and the South Central States 3.7 per cent.

The same questionnaire reveals that of every hundred tourists, 60 generally stop over night at hotels, 20 patronize tourist homes, 13 go to tourists' camps and the other either camps or homes.

These figures are probably not quite fair, however, as members of the A. A. A. to whom the questionnaire was sent will probably be hotel patronizers more frequently than the general touring public.

Most Travel

By Auto.

Eighty-four per cent of the questioned ones do their traveling by automobile. The average expenditures per day per person, including transportation of all types, is put at $8.43.

Most motorists, asked what they consider a safe speed on the open highway, say 50 miles per hour. An occasional fanatic says as low as 30 m. p. h., while even stranger fanatics, a few of them, claim safety as high as 70 m. p. h. and brag about safe speed at 80 m. p. h.

The most popular city of all to visit is Washington, with New York a close second. Out of 47 cities named in this respect Atlanta places 26th, just ahead of Atlantic City and just behind Portland, Ore.

There are many other fascinating bits of information in the booklet but they can be saved, maybe to provide another Silhouette some day.

Just one quoted paragraph to conclude:

"The average American prefers to travel by automobile. . . his trip lasts about three weeks, and he selects his travel objectives as he goes; he chooses good roads rather than great scenery; he has a distinct predilection for visiting old haunts and, by and large, he prefers comfort and safety to speed."

That Pillar

Of Fire.

PARIS.—A controversy having arisen in England over the historic authenticity of the pillar of fire which is said to have preceded the nomadic Hebrews under Moses in their wanderings through the Sinai desert, Professor E. W. MacBride now advances a very interesting explanation. He begins by saying that in the account given in Exodus of the life of Moses we are told that he fled from Egypt and took refuge with Jethro, the priest of the Kenites, into whose family he married and with whom he remained for 40 years.

When he returned to Egypt to rescue his people he claimed to come as the exponent of a new revelation of God, different from that held by their fathers. The new revelation was obviously derived from the Kenites.

This pastoral tribe had as their center the mountain called in the Bible Horeb or Sinai. This is in the north of the Sinai peninsula and is now an extinct volcano, but in the time of Moses it was an active one, and the Kenites regarded the formless fire as the direct appearance of the Deity. Hence their horror at all attempts to represent Him by images.

But there were oil-bearing rocks all round them as there still are today, and from these a crude naphtha was obtained which took fire when exposed to the rays of the sun. Naturally, the tribesmen did not discriminate between an "underground" fire proceeding from masses of molten lava and one produced by oil. This crude naphtha was termed "the fire of the Lord" and during the whole of Jewish history it was poured by the priests on their sacrifices, and it took fire from the direct rays of the sun. . . .

"Fire of ## The Lord."

When Moses returned to Egypt he carried with him a supply of the "fire of the Lord" and when he led the Exodus a huge caldron of this was carried at the head of the marching hosts. It was this that produced the "pillar of cloud" by day and the "pillar of fire" by night.

Yet space is far too valuable to allow me to encroach on it by giving an account of the part which this "fire of the Lord" played in Jewish history, but its last appearance is dramatic. When Julian the Apostate visited Palestine he planned to please the Jews and convert the Christians by rebuilding the Hebrew temple. When, however, his builders began to dig up the foundations they were driven back by explosions and flames issuing from the ground. These phenomena were given a supernatural interpretation by the triumphant Christians.

But that they really occurred is rendered certain by the fact that they are recorded in the pages of Ammianus Marcellinus, a pagan historian, who accompanied Julian on his visit to Palestine and whom Gibbon terms his last trustworthy witness. Once we know, however, what the "fire of the Lord" was, the explanation is simple.

When the temple was burnt by Titus in A. D. 70, a vast mass of smouldering timbers and ashes sank down over the foundations and smothered all further fire. The chambers in which "the fire of the Lord" was stored were subterranean, and when these were invaded by excavators carrying naked lights the consequences can be easily imagined.

Annie Oakley.

It was appropriate for Annie Oakley to be born on Lucy Stone's birthday, for if ever a woman made and kept a name for herself, it was Annie Woodland, Ohio, was her native town, and 1866 the year. She won rifle matches in competition with men before she was 16, and in 1891, in a national championship tourney, broke 4,772 out of 5,000 glass balls thrown away from three traps. (She was firing at 15 yards rise.)

Typical Annie Oakley feat: plugging a dime held between a man's thumb and forefinger at 30 feet without injuring him—except possibly his nerve. Annie's husband never cared to hold any targets for her, however.

"A very romantic marriage has just taken place at Starke's Station, Ga. H. S. Haines, a telegraph operator at Dalton, and Miss Ella Phillips, an operator at Sugar Valley, courted over wires and met by appointment at Starke's Station, where they were married under a big hickory tree. They went from there to Dalton and then departed for their respective posts of duty."

The Sad Story of a Bright Idea That Got Here Too Soon

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Many years ago, in the city of Babylon, a certain young man, whose mind was filled with serious thoughts, developed a brilliant idea and took it to the wise man of the city.

"I wish to show this to the people," said he, "but I have no skill in such matters and need your advice."

"You will find it a dangerous business," said the wise man, "but I'll tell you how to go about it. Your idea is brilliant and so clear that anybody should see through it, but it took me shown in its present form. You must give it a setting of words."

So the young man returned home and set the idea in a frame of gorgeous, four-dollar words and walked abroad with it. A few wise old men peered at him and nodded approval, but the multitude gave him no attention.

When the city wise man heard these things, he said: "No wonder. You used the wrong setting. Faulty ideas are given showy settings to hide their cheapness, and the people have grown suspicious. Moreover, your setting is so elaborate it hides the idea. You must select the simplest words you can find."

So the young man reset his idea in simple little words that made it seem brighter than ever and again walked abroad with it.

And again the multitude went its way and appeared not to see him. Puzzled and discouraged, he returned to the city wise man.

"I have seen it work in the past," said the wise one, "but apparently this isn't the right year. We must try the sure-fire scheme. People failed to see your idea because they didn't see you. And they didn't see you because you are a nobody. You must get a reputation, and then any idea you have will seem wonderful." I must warn you again, however, that the whole business is dangerous."

The young man bowed and hired seven publicity agents who walked before him blowing through it, crying at each he here! What a man! And everybody turned to look and the young man was the talk of the town.

Then he polished up his idea and stood in a public place and a great roar greeted him. "At last!" he sighed. At that moment the first stone hit him on the left ear.

"Puzzled, bruised, bloody and broken, he crawled to the wise man's door."

"They hated my idea," he moaned.

"I was afraid of that," said the wise man. "The idea is wonderful and the setting is right, but it's the wrong year. You'll be famous 10 years from now when people get used to the idea. They'll look up your grave and give you a swell monument."

ROWER IS DROWNED AS SWIMMER TIPS BOAT ON PARK LAKE

Earl N. Brown, 19, of East Point, Dies at Vogel State Reservation.

Thompson avenue, East Point, was drowned yesterday at about noon in Vogel state park lake, near Neal's Gap, when the boat in which he was rowing turned over near the middle of the lake, 75 feet from shore.

Brown had on all of his clothes and was holding the watches and pocketbooks of the five Atlanta young people with whom he had gone on a holiday outing. His companions, two boys and three girls, were swimming near the boat in 35 feet of water when one of the five attempted to climb from the water over the gunwale of the small craft, turning it over.

Good Swimmer.
In the excitement which ensued, Brown, who was regarded as a good swimmer in normal circumstances, went under the water. His body was not found until three hours later, after boys from the near-by CCC camp were recruited in the search.

All efforts to revive him were useless. Coroner J. M. Akins, of Union county, said there would be no inquest into the cause of death because of the large number of witnesses to the drowning.

Watches which Brown was holding for other members of his party all had stopped at exactly 11:20 o'clock, indicating the time the boat was tipped over.

Youth's Companions.
The youth's companions were: George Roberts, Newt McPherson and Misses Virginia Colson, Juan-

He Waits 44 Years, Then Leaps for Her

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Aaron Nelson Lieberger, who waited 44 years to wed his first love, advised today: "All young lovers should follow their hearts' dictates—look before you leap though—and then leap no matter what happens."

Nearly a half century ago Lieberger and Athalia Stillwagon planned their wedding. They quarreled and Miss Stillwagon, pretty and 20, broke the engagement.

They separated and Miss Stillwagon became Mrs. T. H. Edmonds. Her husband died.

Then Lieberger, who had married and become a widower, wrote to "Linda," apologizing for the quarrel.

Yesterday they were married. "It was all my fault. I was a jealous young buck in those days," said Lieberger.

ita Eubanks and Nancy Wyong. Brown, a former Russell High school student, was a member of the First Baptist church of East Point, where funeral services will be held under the direction of A. C. Hemperley.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Angie Mae Brown; a brother, Harry Brown; a sister, Mary Brown, and his grandmother, Mrs. F. M. Coody.

MONTAGUE TO FACE HIS 'OLD PAL' IN JAIL

Golf Wizard's Trial Set for Today on Charge of Robbery.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—An admitted "old pal" of the once mysterious John Montague, Hollywood's phantom of the fairways, waited tonight in an Essex county jail cell to identify the playmate of movie stars as a participant in a 1930 holdup at Jay, N. Y.

Montague, referred to as "a modern Jean Valjean" by a New York state supreme court justice who released him on $25,000 bail two weeks ago, will be arraigned in county court here tomorrow on a charge of first degree robbery.

Appearing against him, District Attorney Thomas McDonald said, will be Roger Norton, 35, truck driver brought here from Cleveland, Ohio, as a material witness. Norton served two years in prison after pleading guilty of the hold-up of Kin Hanna, his wife and three daughters at an Adirondack mountain roadhouse seven years ago.

The once camera-shy Montague, whose legendary exploits on the golf links had won the friendship of Bing Crosby and other notables of the film world, was arrested in California recently when a New York state trooper identified one of his rare published photographs as that of Laverne Moore, of Syracuse, N. Y.

COUNCIL TO TALK SEWER PLAN TODAY

County's Proposal Due To Be Discussed by Group Again.

A routine session was predicted for city council this afternoon by members who declared "there will be little important business to consider."

The body is scheduled to consider a proposed agreement whereby by Fulton county would contribute one-third the cost of operating and maintaining the sewer disposal plants beginning next year, but it was expected that the matter of financing repairs to the municipal auditorium roof will be delayed.

Improvements to the signal systems of both the fire and police departments will be urged, as each department requests extra funds for this purpose. The police department will ask for an appropriation of $1,500 while the fire department will request a transfer of a similar amount to extend its signal system, Councilman John T. Marler, who is chairman of the board of fire-masters and a member of the police committee, said.

Councilman John A. White's resolutions requesting the state highway department to repave Piedmont avenue from Ponce de Leon to the railroad bridge, and for the county to rush widening of Piedmont in front of the Piedmont Driving Club are expected to be adopted this afternoon.

A number of resolutions passed on in committees last week will be considered today also.

PROCESS CONVERTS GASOLINE INTO TNT

U. S. Is Only Nation That Knows of Catalyst.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Discovery of a process to convert gasoline into the fuel which makes TNT in quantities enough to supply the United States' entire needs for this explosive in wartime, was reported to the American Chemical Society here today.

The gasoline TNT was discovered by Dr. Aristide von Grosse, of the Universal Oil Products Company, Chicago, and described by Dr. Gustav Egloff of that company.

Dr. Egloff said that no other country knows how to convert its "gas" into this high explosive. Although chemists were told today the precise changes made in gasoline to get TNT the "catalyst" that does it is a secret.

GLAD HOMECOMING TURNS TO ASHES

Scout, Returning From Jamboree, Dies Aboard Ship.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James Hoyt, of McKeesport, Pa., arrived at the pier today to greet their Boy Scout son, James, 17, on his return from the world-wide jamboree in Holland only to learn the boy had died last night as the liner Scythia neared the coast.

The boy became seriously ill Friday and died last night despite constant attention of the ship doctor, K. Digby Bell. Last rites of the Roman Catholic church were administered by one of several priests aboard.

Hoyt was one of 74 Scouts, including his brother, Jack, returning from the jamboree.

5 ON CRIPPLED BOAT

Coast Guard Goes to Rescue of Fishing Schooner.

OCEAN CITY, Md., Sept. 6.—(AP) Coast guardsmen put out 30 miles into the Atlantic today to rescue five men from the 32-foot disabled fishing schooner Felice, which drifted helplessly for 24 hours after it was caught in a squall.

The owner, Captain Ernest Purring, of Philadelphia; his sons, Ernest Jr., and George, and two of his sons' friends were aboard.

Purring said the craft left Beach Haven, N. J., Sunday morning, bound for Philadelphia. In the middle of the afternoon, Purring said, a squall broke over the boat. It ripped the rigging from the craft and broke the main boom.

YEGGS GET $4,000.

Important Industrial Policy Mapped By Governors of Southeast States

Full Co-operation in Plans for Factory Expansion To Be Assured as 9 Chiefs Join in Common Program for Growth of Industry in Their Areas.

This is a summary of the series of nine articles concluded yesterday in The Constitution which have presented interviews with the nine Governors of the southeastern states on business and industrial conditions in their area and on their recently launched fight to eliminate freight rate differentials.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Under the leadership of their respective Governors, nine southeastern states have joined in a common program for industrial expansion which is expected to have a far-reaching effect on the future development of the area.

Recognizing the common factors present throughout the section as reflected in labor conditions, climate and availability of raw materials, the Governors of the nine states are soon to come forward with an important declaration of policy designed to give industry assurance of full co-operation in plans for factory expansion.

The announcement will be made in a way to impress upon the country the new business and industrial aims of the southeastern states, extending from the Carolinas to Louisiana and from Florida to Kentucky, inclusive.

Governors Lay Groundwork.
Already the groundwork has been laid in the harmonious, close working organization of the Southeastern Governors' Conference, together with the individual programs either actually adopted or in contemplation in the several states of the region. Common problems are being tackled in a collective way. While the individual states are setting up different methods for industrial development, varying somewhat as to detail, the broad objective is the same.

A balancing of agriculture and industry, involving the introduction of new industries, best counted to thrive under favorable conditions found in the area.

To this end, Mississippi and Louisiana, for example, have established industrial commissions whose duty it is to go out and seek new factories. Both have been highly successful in the first year's operations, as evidenced by the fact that upwards of $30,000,000 in new industries have been brought to the states under the programs.

North Carolina, likewise, has created a conservation and development commission functioning along the same lines, with the added task of encouraging the proper development of the state's agricultural and recreational facilities.

Rivers Maps Action.

In Alabama, Governor Bibb Graves, chairman of the Southeastern Governors' Conference, is reviving a similar agency, while in Georgia, Governor E. D. Rivers has announced his intention of laying before the forthcoming special session of the legislature recommendations for a broad study of existing state programs preliminary to outlining a permanent industrial policy for the state.

Four of the states, North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, have approved definite programs of national advertising to bring to the attention of the country the industrial potentialities within their borders. North Carolina, at the direction of Governor Clyde Hoey, has taken the lead with a $250,000 appropriation for a two-year program. But Louisiana, Tennessee and Mississippi are closely in line with $100,000 annual advertising budgets in operation.

Florida, on the other hand, has long followed the policy of advertising through governmental, municipal and private agencies the state's winter recreational advantages.

At least three of the southeastern states, moreover, are offering added inducements in the form of exemption from taxation to new industries. The states are Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi, the exemptions ranging from five to fifteen years.

New Legislation Expected.
All nine of the southeastern states, in fact, through their Governors, are planning to give further consideration to the subject, determined to adopt whatever programs are necessary for due industrial expansion. Coming sessions of the legislature in the section may see new legislation put forward in many of the commonwealths.

Linked with the programs is the drive launched by the Governors' conference for elimination of long standing territorial rail freight rate differentials which the state executives believe have retarded the normal industrial development of the region. Governor Graves, as chairman, and former

MILITANT POWERS GET ARMS WARNING

Italy, Japan and Germany Told To Buy Needs in League Report.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—(UP)—The raw materials committee of the League of Nations, rejecting the contention of Germany, Italy and Japan that they need colonies for basic industrial products, told them bluntly tonight that they could buy all the raw materials they need if they stopped their feverish armament race.

The three Fascist powers were not named but their identification was unmistakable.

Report Prepared.
The committee embodied its declaration in a report summarizing a year of intense investigation of what many say is the chief problem underlying world unrest.

It warned the three powers that only by halting arms expenditures and reducing their trade barriers could they hope to overcome their raw material difficulties.

Behind the warning was implied the fear that now that Italy has conquered Ethiopia and Japan again is invading North China, Germany—loudest in her demands for colonies—may take advantage of the existing confusion to strike.

Hull's Appeal Favored.
The report, which will be submitted to the assembly opening September 13, thus indirectly endorses United States Secretary of

6 REDS ARE QUISHED FOR SPENDING CASH OF CITY ON WOMEN

Uzbek Officials Accused of Turning 'Rest Home' Into a Brothel.

MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Soviet "purge" today caught six officials at Tashkent, capital of the Uzbek Republic in the heart of Asia, on charges of squandering the city's funds on wild drinking debauches with girls from a "Rest Home."

The Communist party organ, Pravda, called the Tashkent officials "Bourgeois Nationalists" and accused them even of slaughtering the municipality's horses to provide meat for their revels. Pravda said the six were eliminated in a "clean up" but did not specify their fate.

Pravda claimed the officials turned the Communist party rest home at Tashkent into a "brothel" in their drinking bouts with girls from the home.

"The home had been set aside for active party members but honest members were not allowed to go there," Pravda said. "It was used by a small group for anti-Soviet activities."

Akmal Ikramov, deposed secretary of the party's central committee, was criticized as the "political boss" of Uzbek in the Tashkent newspaper "The East." The paper said he failed to expose conditions there.

EUROPE IS SEEN AS BETTER, WORSE

Lamont Is Hopeful, Baruch Melancholy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Two widely-known American financiers, stepping today from the same gangplank after trips abroad, delivered sharply contrasting opinions about European business.

In most continental countries, and in England, a swell, economic conditions were "improving gradually," said Thomas W. Lamont, a Morgan partner.

But Bernard M. Baruch dismissed observers' reports of renewed progress in Europe with this melancholy remark:

"I wonder if those observers used a telescope or a microscope?" Europe, he added, was in a bad state, and the whole world "is dominated by fear."

duced and more harm than good results.

From Memphis, meanwhile, came reports that a plan was afoot for formation of an organization in which New York brokers and southern planters will be aligned in the cotton country's fight to regain world cotton markets.

Commercial Appeal said Colonel Lawrence Westbrook, advisor to the Association of Southern Agricultural Commissioners which met there Saturday confirmed the report.

At Auburn, Ala., P. O. Davis, chief of the State Agricultural Extension Service, invited farmers and county agents to meet there Wednesday "to consider best ways of handling the 1937 cotton crop and make recommendations to growers."

Parity Demanded. At a meeting this week end, the commissioners adopted resolutions demanding parity payments on all this year's cotton crop of more than 15,000,000 bales and a revision of the loan plan.

From other sections of the south where the economic barometer responds to cash in cotton planters' pockets, voices were raised against the government decision against loans of 10 cents or above and failure to cover the entire base production with subsidy payments.

North Barbour county, Alabama, farmers by resolution expressed "disappointment" with the government plan. Drafted by a committee headed by Donald Comer, textile manufacturer, the resolution asked protection "by tariff" against "the billion pounds of jute that comes into this country annually substituting for two million bales of our own cotton."

When the President "finds out what has been done," Bankhead said, "I hope he will repudiate the plan that has been announced." He also expressed hope congress will investigate "development of the loans and adjustment payments."

Appealing to cotton farmers, Bankhead's formal statement said: "The opportunity lies perfectly plain before the cotton farmers to help themselves and help their government. They can comply with that obligation in an easy way—simply by putting their cotton under the loan and refusing to sell it until the price is considerably higher than it is now. . . . It is practically certain that an effective crop control will be passed promptly after congress meets. Ten million bales will probably be the limit for next year's crop. Farmers who almost give away their cotton now will regret it when cotton is scarce and reasonably priced next year."

CLOUDS AND SHOWERS PREDICTED FOR TODAY

Cloudy skies with local showers may be expected throughout Georgia today, the weather bureau predicted yesterday.

Slightly cooler weather is expected to prevail in the east central portion of the state today. Temperature extremes yesterday ranged between 68 and 91 degrees.

STATE DISMISSES WARDEN AND GUARD

of Benny Allen, negro, who fled the Bibb county gang, still shackled, were the first since the Governor's drastic order designed to halt the wave of escapes that has taken nearly 100 convicts to freedom in a month.

Two Escapes Seized Here. Meantime, Atlanta detectives registered a slight dent in the fugitive population with the arrest of Charlie Bryant, 19, and Bill Parks, 21, escapes in last week's wholesale break from the Banks county gang.

The pair was seized by Detectives Leo Nalick and M. M. Coppenger in a rooming house on Piedmont avenue, a stone's throw from police headquarters.

A third youth, Aaron Watson, arrested with them, was not identified as an escape, but was held on suspicion of robbery.

The detectives questioned Bryant yesterday morning for questioning in the holdup of Willis Green, filling station operator at Fair and Connally streets, robbed Sunday night of $20 and five gallons of gasoline by three men, one of whom he identified as Bryant.

Warden Unconcerned. Warden Warf apparently was not perturbed by his removal. He intimated he welcomed relief from responsibility.

"They removed me this morning," he told The Constitution by telephone. "Mr. Johns came up here and told me I was through. We had an escape killed up here the first of the year, and then they told us we couldn't shoot and now these men got away."

McGuire has been connected with the Hall county gang as warden and guard for nearly 30 years.

Keeps County Post. Warf retains his position of county road supervisor. He said his salary is unaffected by his removal from the wardenship.

The Prison Commission offices in the capital were closed for Labor Day and none of the commissioners could be reached for comment.

Nalick and Coppenger said their prisoners grinningly told them they were "giving low and trying to get to Massachusetts."

They laughed at reports they had been surrounded in the woods of Rabun county and insisted they came straight to Atlanta after their escape, reaching here late Thursday.

Holdup Link Sought. Bryant had not been connected definitely with a second holdup, that of W. L. Sexton, operator of a Spring street lunch room, although, the detectives said, the description he gave of the bandits who relieved him of a small amount of money resembled that of Bryant and Parks. Bryant was held 11 years for a holdup in which Willie Green also had been a victim.

Hall county authorities said they did not believe that Willie Whitmore, 22, serving one to three years for burglary and Bill Harris, five years for automobile theft, both from Fulton county, and H. Master, of Hall county, serving two to three years for burglary and four years from Barrow county for automobile theft, had gone far, although they had not been recaptured.

Rivers Repeats Criticism. At New Orleans, Governor Rivers repeated his criticism of Governor Hatcher, of Massachusetts, in refusing to grant extradition for a Georgia prisoner.

"That set many prisoners to escaping so they could go to Massachusetts and be protected," he charged.

Meantime, the state continued preparing to transfer its hardest-boiled prisoners to the Tattall prison in the flatlands near Reidsville.

Prison Commission Chairman Johns had blamed many recent flights on convicts' dread of entering Tattall, "as near escape proof as you can get it."

ment. This, the agency said, is because the official Japanese investigation of the shooting is incomplete.

British Demands. Britain's demands were for an apology, punishment of the guilty parties and guarantees against recurrence of the affair.

Japan's communication will be made public in London.

Hirota, answering a question in the diet (parliament), said that "so far no tangible proof has been produced to show" that the British envoy's automobile "was attacked by a Japanese plane."

Sir Hugué was wounded August 26 while motoring from Nanking to Shanghai and is recovering in a Shanghai hospital. Britain delivered a strong protest to Tokyo August 29 charging categorically that he was hit by bullets from a Japanese plane which swooped down on his motorcar and branding the attack an example of Japanese assaults on noncombatants in China.

Termed Insulting. The British charges were called insulting in the diet. "What are the opinions of foreign minister and navy minister concerning the insult contained in the Imperial Japanese forces committed an act contrary to humanity?" asked Takeshi Azuma, leading member of the Seiyukai, second largest political party.

"I should like to refrain from commenting on an official note."

Because Britain's demands em-

Child's Sickness Ends Governors' Feud

"And a little child shall lead them." One of the bitterest verbal combats between governors in recent years came to an end when Governor Rivers heard of the serious illness his opponent's daughter, Sally Hurley, who has been near death for days. Rivers attacked the Massachusetts governor for refusing to extradite a Georgia chain gang fugitive.

Brantley Convict Prefers Gang To Living in Land of Sacred Cod

Applicant for Parole Makes It Plain He Does Not Want Freedom If It Means He'll Have To Join Colony in Massachusetts.

By DORIAN STOUT. Back Bay, Massachusetts, would positively froth if they heard about it, but one Georgian prefers languishing on a home state chain gang to living in the land of the sacred cod.

The prisoner, who decidedly does not want a parole to Massachusetts, is Gilbert Highsmith, of Brantley county, now serving time on the Telfair county chain gang, offense not stated.

In fact, his attorney formally told the state prison commission Highsmith thinks he's been punished enough already without having to undergo life in Massachusetts, despite a rapidly growing colony of refugees from the Georgia prison system.

"Sufficiently Punished." "My client believes he has a most meritorious case," Hubert Rawls, his attorney, wrote the prison commission, "as the prosecutor, county officials and others say that he has been sufficiently punished."

"He authorizes me to say that he had rather spend his life on a Georgia chain gang than be tortured by going to this Massachusetts."

"In fact, he says he had rather spend his time on a Georgia gang from a foreign nation," said Hirota.

"It is unthinkable that the imperial navy would commit acts contrary to humanity," was the comment of Admiral Matsuura Yonai, the navy minister.

Prods Hirota. The bristling Azuma said further of the British note: "It says the Japanese forces are barbarous and always are attacking non-combatants. Is the foreign office willing to accept it as a legitimate note? Was not the British ambassador himself responsible for the incident, in that he drove without notice into a belligerent zone?"

(In London British officials declined comment on reports that the new British ambassador to Tokyo, Sir Robert L. Craigie, might withhold presentation of his credentials to the Emperor until Japan had given satisfaction over the shooting of Sir Hugué. Sir Robert reached Japan only last week.)

BRITAIN TO INSIST ON A FULL REPLY. LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A Japanese "intimid" reply to Great Britain's protests over the machine-gunning of her ambassador to China, Sir Hugué Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen, was believed tonight only to have started protracted negotiations.

Authoritative sources said the "unusual" rejoinder, the contents of which were not made public, apparently was calculated to satisfy public opinion so that, no matter how long diplomatic exchanges drag out, the incident would be forgotten and it would not matter if a "final reply" never were received.

It was understood that Japan's reply, while regretting the injury to Sir Hugué, said Japanese inquiries still were being pursued. Well informed quarters, however, said Great Britain would insist on a full reply to her demands for satisfaction.

The reported tone of Tokyo's note and accounts of Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's speech to the diet, casting doubt on what Britain had regarded as an established fact—that a Japanese warplane fired on Sir Hugué—caused concern and indignation here.

Because Britain's demands emphasized absolute certainty that the British version of the facts was correct, authoritative quarters predicted that Japan's "intimid" response not only was unsatisfactory but also lessened the possibility of a final agreement.

2 WOMEN VICTIMS OF GUNSHOTS DIE. Mate of One, Suffering From Injuries in Plunge, Blamed for Deaths.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP) Mrs. Dolores Wamble, 30-year-old bride of five months, and her mother, Mrs. R. H. O'Neal, 55, formerly of Duck Hill, Miss., died today of gunshot wounds while police sought a motive in what they described as a double-murder and attempted suicide.

Captain Frank Gilson said Horace Wamble, 40, salesman, shot his wife and mother-in-law Saturday night and then dived head first from his second-story apartment.

Mrs. Wamble was shot in the abdomen and back, her mother was shot in the arm and side. Physicians described his condition as "very poor."

Captain Gilson said the women, who remained conscious yesterday, told him Wamble had been drinking heavily. The shooting occurred upon the return of the women from an errand to the apartment where they lived together.

Upon opening the door to admit them, Wamble began firing his revolver without speaking, Captain Gilson said he was told. Terror-stricken, the women screamed and neighbors called police. Wamble then threw himself from the window, about 25 feet to a concrete runway where his crushed body was found.

CHINESE SHATTER NIPPON'S 'BIG PUSH'

combats were blown to death as the big Japanese bombers carried terror far and wide.

One hundred Chinese were reported killed when Japanese planes raided Tating, Shansi province, in the semi-desert northwest. Cities along the lush, subtropical coasts of Kwangtung province, below Hongkong, felt the power of the Japanese warships and warplanes.

From Tating to Kwangtung is more than a week's journey by any means but airplanes.

Because of the punishing Japanese naval and air attacks on Amoy and Foochow, ports of Fukien province, and other South China cities, the United States embassy at Nanking urged all Americans to evacuate those places. It authorized closing of the consulates at Foochow and Amoy.

U. S. Ship at Amoy. The United States naval vessel Tulsa stood by in Amoy harbor to protect American interests and the British destroyer was en route from Hongkong to the Fukien port.

Near Hongkong, a flotilla of Japanese warships established a blockade of the Pearl river, main highway of the teeming Chinese southland, to Canton and further inland. A Chinese customs vessel was sunk and another seized. British officers aboard them were first landed by sampans.

Molest British Boat. Just off Hongkong a Japanese warship dropped shells close to the British river steamer Taisan, 3,174 tons, compelling her to return to Hongkong. There were unsubstantiated reports Japanese warships had operated even within territorial waters of the British colony itself.

Sunday the Japanese navy claimed a blockade on the entire 2,150-mile coastline of China, but it was ostensibly against Chinese shipping only and specifically excluded Hongkong and other foreign holdings.

The Shanghai fighting was the most extensive of the 25-day battle in this city. It stretched from Shanghai to Woosung, 12 miles along the curving banks of the Whangpoo river, then curved back 20 or more miles to the southwest along the shores of the mighty Yangtze, through Paoshan and Lotient to Luho.

300,000 Hoke Off $9,000. From both rivers the Japanese tried to thrust inland and drive the Chinese from the 100-square-mile triangle, Shanghai-Woosung-Luho. They had an estimated 80,000 men ashore, scores of warships and their airplanes to press the attack. Some 200,000 Chinese troops were at or near the front.

The Chinese lines bent, but did not break. The Japanese captured Paoshan, old walled town just west of Woosung, where the Rising Sun flag was planted on the crumbling walls after assaults from north, west and south.

Kiangwan, halfway between Shanghai and Woosung, bore the brunt of the Japanese attack from the Whangpoo side. The Japanese flagships Idzumo and several destroyers supported the infantry assault with their heavy guns. Here the Chinese had to give ground. They admitted retirement from the city center district on the outskirts of Kiangwan.

Politics Forgotten. The boats raced were 21 feet long. It isn't right to call them yachts. Most people think of yachts as the boats which Vanderbilt raced in the cup races with England. These were just extra long row boats with sails.

Bibb Graves, of Alabama, was here with his wife, Senator Dixie Graves.

The start was at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. There was a really terrific rainstorm blowing at the time.

Start Is Bad. Georgia got a bad start, due to the interference of a tourist boat. After being fourth most of the way, the boat lost some wind and Browning and Graves passed them.

The entire Yacht Club praised Ed Rivers and his crew. With the boat admittedly the slowest in the fleet, they expected him to be a bad last. He got in sixth just a nose behind two other boats.

Admiral Smith, heart-broken at being unable to steer, was more heart-broken about his uniform. The rain ruined it.

The race was six miles, twice around a triangular course. They covered the distance in 2 hours 33 minutes and 30 seconds.

White's Advantage. I could get technical and tell how Governor White's crew obtained its advantage on the windward boat. But what of it? White won.

And I liked, more than ever, this fellow Rivers. He is of the New Groups Participate. Because of the labor discussion, many organizations formerly represented in the parade as affiliates of the Atlanta Federation of Trades were missing. However, other new organizations, such as retail clerks, had representatives in the march for the first time.

Garment Workers No. 28, was awarded first place for its unit in the line of march, while the Auto and Aircraft Mechanics Union took first place with its illustrative float. Firefighters, plumbers and painters won awards in that order in the line of march, and the molders, pipe fitters and auto machinists took second, third and fourth places, respectively, with their floats.

The parade was directed by Grand Marshal William Strauss, who has been in charge of Labor Day parades for years in Atlanta. At Columbus, Representative

Stephen Pace in a prepared address, urged the working class to temper its "zeal, enthusiasm and determination" with a "good portion of common sense, patience, tolerance and understanding."

All, however, was not devoted to labor's triumphs and tribulations. At Macon, the second annual Labor Day invitation golf tournament beckoned more than 50 players. Georgia women golfers began their tournament at Rome.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, told delegates attending the Salzburger convention in Effingham county of the heritage the state had won from the early settlers called Salzburger, who came to Georgia at the invitation of Georgia's founder, General James Oglethorpe. His address was made at a picnic at Effingham.

At Savannah Beach, officials of the Citizens and Southern National Bank and all Rotary Club presidents in the state gave over the day to outings and frolic.

Barrett Principal Speaker. At Macon, James V. Barrett, of Asheville, N. C., territorial representative of the AFL, spoke at a morning ceremony.

Dalton continued its holiday observance after the opening Sunday of the town's centennial celebration. The opening was marked with a call to all religious denominations by Bishop Warren A. Candler "To walk the same road and mind the same things."

Labor Day festivities and the dedication of the new Fannin county courthouse were united into a single program at Blue Ridge. Representative B. Frank Welch was the chief speaker.

State officials were on the program of the farmers'-citizens' rally at Bainbridge, the speakers list including Dr. Charles Herty, Savannah chemist, and Columbus Roberts, state commissioner of agriculture.

For many workers who desired to remain free of formal exercises and programs, opportunity was given for a day of rest at home. Principal business houses in most cities were closed for the day.

surprise, finished fourth, and Bibb Graves, still more startled, was fifth. Ed Rivers, fourth most of the way, was sixth.

Happy Chandler, of Kentucky, brought up the rear.

His wife and daughters and his son met him as he came in, water dripping from him.

"Daddy," said his daughter, Mimi, "you are the best sailor of them all."

"Well, daughter," he said, "I sailed longer than any of them. His son hugged him. "You were fine, daddy," he said.

This was a very fine event, it was good fellowliness. It was a meeting of good fellows of the sort who have their own problems of governing southern states.

Bibb Graves, of Alabama, was here with his wife, Senator Dixie Graves.

The start was at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. There was a really terrific rainstorm blowing at the time.

Start Is Bad. Georgia got a bad start, due to the interference of a tourist boat. After being fourth most of the way, the boat lost some wind and Browning and Graves passed them.

The entire Yacht Club praised Ed Rivers and his crew. With the boat admittedly the slowest in the fleet, they expected him to be a bad last. He got in sixth just a nose behind two other boats.

Admiral Smith, heart-broken at being unable to steer, was more heart-broken about his uniform. The rain ruined it.

The race was six miles, twice around a triangular course. They covered the distance in 2 hours 33 minutes and 30 seconds.

White's Advantage. I could get technical and tell how Governor White's crew obtained its advantage on the windward boat. But what of it? White won.

And I liked, more than ever, this fellow Rivers. He is of the people, by the people and for the people. He risked his life, and that is not exaggeration to play his part today, he is an honest, intelligent gentleman. His story is one that Georgia knows. An old man, who came in today, said:

"Mr. Rivers, I left Georgia 24 years ago. I kept up with you, money didn't elect you. You friends did that. God bless you. And, that is the way we all feel. He is, in the words of the people, 'a real fellow.'"

The party left tonight for Atlanta, arriving at noon tomorrow. And while he finished next to last, with Happy Chandler behind him, "he was the real champion." Not every man will gamble with his health just to be a good fellow with six other governors.

"The fees that we are asking parents to pay will cover the total cost of these materials and supplies for the entire year and will save parents the expense of purchasing them at retail and the loss of time necessary to buy them from distant cities or supply houses."

The city plan is similar to the county's, it was said.

Wells announced that parents who desire to buy the materials for their children privately may do so.

BLOW DEALT REBELS. GOVERNMENT REPORTS. HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Surrender of 600 insurgent soldiers besieged in Belchite cathedral was reported today in a Spanish government communique from that war-torn town on the Zaragoza front.

The government claimed capture of the cathedral gave its forces complete control of Belchite, strategic point 20 miles south of Zaragoza along the line of insurgent communications with Teruel.

The 600 who surrendered were imprisoned while 1,700 insurgent dead were gathered up from battlefields around the cathedral, the communique said.

RUSSIA IS SILENT ON ITALIAN OBJECTION. MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Soviet Russia gave no clue tonight to her future course of action in regard to the Italian rejection of the Soviet charge that Italy was to blame for the sinking of two Russian ships.

In London diplomatic sources disclosed that the chief of a delegation of Italian shipbuilding experts, named Patrono, has been arrested by Soviet authorities in Leningrad on a charge of spying.

WEEK-END DEATHS SOAR TO 308 MARK; TRAFFIC TOLL 236

Autos Account for Three-Fourths of Fatalities; 30 Reported Drowned.

By the Associated Press.

More than 300 persons died violently in the nation's Labor Day week-end observance.

Automobile traffic accounted for more than three-fourths of the deaths reported from 43 states in an Associated Press survey last night.

Traffic Count 236.
The traffic death count was 236 in a total of 308 lives lost. Thirty persons drowned and 41 died in various other accidents.

A third of the traffic slaughter occurred in five middle western states—Michigan with 27, followed by Ohio with 23, Illinois with 12, Indiana with 11 and Minnesota with 10.

Mounting week-end total of automobile deaths compared with 271 traffic fatalities during the corresponding period last year.

Six persons died in plane crashes in the United States. Three others were believed killed when a plane plunged into Lake Erie near the Canadian shore.

Crowds Jam Erlanger for 'Screen Debutantes' Film

Throng of first nighters jammed the Erlanger theater last night to attend the world's premiere of the Atlanta-made "Screen Debutantes." Above is shown a portion of the crowd in front of the brightly lighted theater. In addition to the Atlanta film, sponsored by The Constitution, theatergoers last night witnessed the southern premiere of "Broken Blossoms," remade screen hit of the silent days.

Throng Attend Premiere Showing Of Film 'Debutantes' at Erlanger

Extra Officers Necessary to Reroute Traffic on Peachtree at Theater; "Broken Blossoms" Presented With Screening of Local Talent Picture.

Throng of first nighters jammed Peachtree street last night to attend the premiere of the Atlanta-made "Screen Debutantes" at the Erlanger theater.

Long before the opening, crowds packed the front of the theater and extra officers were called to reroute congested traffic. Additional ticket sellers were hastily summoned to handle the overflow crowd.

In addition to witnessing the premiere of the Atlanta-made film, theatergoers last night saw the southern premiere of "Broken Blossoms."

First Nighter.

As the crowds packed the entrance of the theater, striving to get inside, they mingled with the stars of the picture, possibly future stars of Hollywood. At the entrance was the First Nighter, interviewing prominent members of the cast and audience over radio station WATL.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, chairman of the censor board of Atlanta, said, "Making of the picture is the nicest thing that has happened in Atlanta."

All members of the cast and audience were excited. Before the microphone they found trouble speaking. All had praise for the picture.

Hollywood Trip Prize.

"Atlanta Screen Debutantes" was made under the sponsorship of The Constitution. One member of the cast will be given a free trip to Hollywood and maybe a movie contract. The cast is entirely Georgian.

gian. Hollywood executives will view the film with the hope of finding new talent for the silver screen.

Each member of the cast was introduced over the radio as floodlights and fanfare made the Atlanta premiere rival some of the larger Hollywood first nights. Jack Marco, director, introduced the cast from the stage.

The audience cast ballots last night for the actor they thought the best. Other audiences will do likewise. Ballots were distributed as theatergoers entered.

The actor receiving the largest number of votes will get the Hollywood trip.

The film will be shown at 2 o'clock, 4:17 o'clock, 6:34 o'clock and 8:51 o'clock daily.

Following the premiere last night members of the cast were guests at the Wicoma Inn.

Roster of Players.

Those in the Screen Debutantes cast and their sponsors are:

PRINCIPALS.
Barbara Ann Arnold, Regenstein's; Doris Brown, Elliott's Peachtree Studio; Bertie Burr, Wofford Oil Company; J. E. Casey Jr., Barrett Food Products; Sara Dunford, Diamond Jewelry Company.

Supporting Cast.
Kenneth Davidson, Alverton Beauty Salon; Ginger Evans, Idle Hour Club; Coot Franklin, Royal Crown Cola; George Allen, Harrison, Downtown Chevrolet Company; Katherine Huggins, Rosendahl's; Jerry Hughes, Arrow Service Station; Archie Jones, Arrow Service Station; Nellie Lee Jones, Gold Shield Laundry; Douglas Lauderdale, Grant & Company; Lorraine Mayfield, Alverton Beauty Salon; T. McCleskey Jr., Hemphill Avenue Pharmacy; Lee McCutchen, Dutch Oven Bakery; Grace Park, Pine; Barbara Ann Paus, Ten Crown Gum Company; Alice Peacock, Kitty Allen School of Dancing; Marie Philibosian, Philibosian Oriental Rug Company; Venus Philibosian, Philibosian Oriental Rug Company; Millie Powell, Belle Isle-Black and White Cab Co.; Lillian Robertson, Yancy Bros., Inc.; Wallace Selbert, Canada Dry; Jacquelyn Skinner, Smith Paint and Lacquer Company; Grace Stratton, Delta Air Lines; Jimmy Stratton, Delta Air Lines; Dorothy Tournay, Rosendahl's; Chuck Wise, Stone Baking Company; O'Boy Bread; Mildred Withers, Sterling & Company, Jewelers; Vivian Withers, Sterling & Company, Jewelers; Frances Wheeler, Wisteria Gardens; Gene Beverly, Carol Jean Carter, Mary Collette, Phyllis Cheney, Richard Custer, Mary Duncan, Fanny Feldman, Mary Ellen, Elizabeth Geis, Emory Earl Hassler, Sim Hassler, Elizabeth Kail, Almond Roach, Miriam Stoval, Clarissa Wright.

SUPPORTING CAST.
Louise Cheek, Ivan Collins, H. O. Duncan, Margaret Ann Elnore, Louise Free, Roland Garrido, Sara Gilley, Ernest Greaves, Elyse Hight, Helen Hight, Mary Jane Kemp, Eleanor Kibbler, Helen Lester, V. H. Mahone, Emily Annette Miller, Russell Moore, Marjorie Wiley Meyers, Mabel Oglesby, Pat Payne, Michy Sault, Carl R. Smith, Paylie Smith, Morris Stephenson, Katherine Webb, Lillian White, Lee Wilson, Lou Wilson, Madrene Wood, Buddy Young, Charlotte Allen, Jo Ann Argoe, Kermit Bradford and others.

"Broken Blossoms" Scores.
The revamped version of D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" starring the European sensation, Dolly Haas, also scored big with last night's audiences. Dolly as "Lucy" does a masterful job of acting in this picture.

We did not see the original Griffith production in which Lillian Gish was starred, but having seen Imperial's version, we can only marvel at the foresight, courage and enterprise of Griffith, who, in such a distant day dared to make a picture of such a stirring tragedy.

The film is adapted from one of Thomas Burke's famous "Limehouse Nights" stories which some years ago swept the literary world with their interpretation of life in the London slums. In its realism and presentation of its heart touching theme, it deserves to rank with Mr. Burke's masterpieces.

Beaten by Father.
The harrowing tale is about a delicate little girl who is brutally beaten by a drunken and profligate father, a vicious tempered prizefighter. Running away, she collapses at the feet of Chen, a Buddhist missionary, who takes her to his treasure shop and nurses her back to health.

For the first time in her life the child knows kindness and happiness, but her father discovers her whereabouts, goes to the shop with a mob, runs off with his daughter while the mob wrecks and burns the house.

There is no more terrifying scene on the screen than the one where Lucy is dragged back to her mean lodgings, where she locks herself in the closet in agonized fear, is dragged out and beaten to death by a crazed fiend. Chen follows, kills the father and takes the body of Lucy to perish with it in the flames of his former home.

Breaks the Heart.
Miss Haas' performance as Lucy is extraordinary for one so young—her sweet moving gentleness actually flowerlike, her whimpering terror in the closet a thing that breaks the heart with pity long after the picture is ended.

Emlyn Williams, now starring in his own play, "Night Must Fall" in New York, was not as convincing a Chen as he should have been. The father was excellent.

Officials Indicate Huge Tax Returns
Collections Estimated at $500,000,000, Largest for September Since 1929.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Treasury authorities estimated today that income tax collections this month will total $500,000,000—the largest September collections since 1929 and about $140,000,000 over September a year ago.

Income taxes may be paid in four installments on the 15th of March, June, September and December. Many corporations and wealthy individuals take advantage of this provision to save interest on their money.

Officials said their estimate for this month was based on collection trends established since the 1936 revenue act went into effect. This law increased levies on upper-bracket individual incomes and imposed the controversial tax on undistributed corporate profits.

From the September collections, $350,000,000 will go to retire maturing discount bills. This operation will put the public debt below the $37,000,000,000 level for the first time since August 25.

The debt will climb again, quickly, however, if the Treasury decides to start issuing a new series of bill in anticipation of March tax receipts.

ATLANTA'S LEAD IN BRIDGE TOURNAMENT
Four Go Into Finals With Tampa Players of Southeastern.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Atlanta and Tampa teams went into the finals of the southeastern bridge tournament tonight. Mrs. Ruby Bennett announced the finalists each defeated a Jacksonville team in the semi-final round.

The Atlanta team, with Whitner Cary, Mrs. Betty Black, Ed Nix and John Marshall, eliminated a five-man Jacksonville team whose members were W. S. Somers, Stuart Cavanaugh, Mrs. Gladys Peabody, Stanley Norton and T. W. McAlley. Atlanta's victory was by 1,050 cumulative points.

The Tampa team, whose members are Henry Hartman, Ed Elaburn, Fred Stillwell and R. A. Parker, ran up 2,700 cumulative points over the Jacksonville team comprising John Brumbach, Bryan Simpson, J. T. Hagan and John Tyner.

Results in the finals will not be known until tomorrow, Mrs. Bennett said.

Beatrice Lillie Returns With Giant Pocketbook
NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Lady Peel—Beatrice Lillie upon the stage and radio—returned today from abroad lugging a tan pigskin purse so vast that she unhesitatingly described it as the world's largest and fondly announced she had given it a name—"Mary Poppins."

Mary Poppins was an English fictional character who was able to produce from her pocketbook almost any article no matter how improbable.

The Mary Poppins that Lady Peel carried was about the size of a small suitcase.

FOUR SENTENCED FOR STOCK FRAUD

case. Judge Underwood set appeal bonds at $15,000 for Mendelson, Sutterman and Sherman, and $10,000 for Ricebaum.

31-Hour Consideration.
The four men returned to Chicago last Wednesday after Judge Underwood had directed them to be ready to make bond yesterday.

Bonds are expected to be made today, court attaches said. They were convicted by a jury which reached a verdict 31 hours after receiving the case. Four others were acquitted by the same verdict.

Two of the defendants, who pleaded guilty when the trial opened last April, were sentenced by Judge Underwood last Wednesday. Robert Belmont, co-manager of the Atlanta office of Koppold-Quinn & Company, was sentenced to 18 months in an institution of a reformatory type, and Albert Trause was sentenced to serve five years under probation.

The case of William Mendelson was not pressed.

Nine Acquitted.
Previously nine of the original 22 defendants had been acquitted by directed verdicts and mistrials were declared in the case of two.

In passing sentence upon the four men yesterday, Judge Underwood declared that "it is an unpleasant duty to impose sentence in a criminal case."

"I impose these sentences," he said, "with the hope that they may deter others who may be tempted as you have been; to awaken in them a consciousness of the wrong of the unlawful pursuit of gain by defrauding others; and a recognition of the people's determination, as far as they may be able, to put an end to such unlawful practices."

"Confusion" Plea.
In their appeal for a new trial, defense attorneys contended that there had been "much confusion in the case" and that the four who were convicted "had been singled out" in too many instances. Judge Underwood replied that in his opinion the evidence was sufficient to support the verdict of the jury.

Judge Underwood informed state officers yesterday that the defendants will not be relinquished to any state authorities until the case is finally disposed of.

Detective Frank White, who was in the building, was called in and given the instructions.

"Does that mean that they will be out of the jurisdiction of this court when they make appeal bonds?" White questioned.

Judge Underwood replied that they would not be out of the jurisdiction of federal district court until the court of appeals passes on the case.

Preparation of the appeal is expected to require several months because of the length of the record. One of the longest trials in the history of federal district court, more than two and one-half million words have already been recorded in the transcript.

The defendants in the case were charged by the government with operating stock-selling houses in which customers were induced to buy manipulated stocks and then "wiped out" when the price went down. They operated mainly in Chicago, Milwaukee, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas.

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING AND BURNING

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften scales and crusts. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and is especially suited to tender skin. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Doctors recommend an oily ointment because it penetrates the outer layers of the skin more effectively. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For over 40 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing. At druggists.

CHURCHES PLAN 'LOYALTY DAYS'

National Movement Joined by Local Council.

Atlanta churches will participate in the national movement for the promotion of "Church Loyalty Days," October 2 and 3. It was announced yesterday by Dr. W. A. Shelton, president of the Atlanta Christian Council.

The movement, sponsored by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders throughout the country, is designed for the purpose of bringing men back to a conscious regard for the fatherhood of God, Shelton said.

Approval of the movement has been given by President Roosevelt.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. In Gloria Herford's grammar school days a subtle change came over the Herford family as a family. Dr. Herford, always prosperous and busy, became fashionable as well. His pretty wife, Ada, and her sister, who had been a school teacher, developed new tastes and desires. She knew in exactly what fashionable suburb of San Francisco she wanted to buy her home and exactly who belonged and who did not belong to the set. After all, Ada Herford had been the daughter of a rich man a few years earlier; she had had a coming-out party that was still remembered. And so it is delightful to her, after a dozen years of financial and social eclipse, to emerge again, have her home in Seal Cliff, and the doctor knew, but usually she was vague and sweet and easily amused, thinking her husband the most wonderful man in the world and Gloria the most wonderful daughter.

pit. "Hello, had girl," she said plaintively. Gloria planted the tray steadily, seated herself in a chair facing her mother. "How's the head?" "Oh, I slept!" Mrs. Herford said, with a martyr's smile. She was a gentle, helpless-seeming creature, given to mild complaints and protests and often to what she called "my awful blues." On rare occasions she could be stubborn enough as Gloria and the doctor knew, but usually she was vague and sweet and easily amused, thinking her husband the most wonderful man in the world and Gloria the most wonderful daughter.

father's handsome home in Seal Cliff, a suburb of San Francisco, and stood for a moment looking off across the blue bay and the hills beyond the Golden Gate. An onlooker might have ignored the view and concentrated on the girl who was lingering for a moment at her car, taking a last survey of the scene. Gloria Herford was a study in pale browns; her chevron suit and soft little sweater were in two shades of brown; her hair was brown; her loose riding gloves and low-heeled suede oxfords were brown. Her coloring was all warm, soft browns, too; smooth, firm cheeks unburned to what her father called pongee-color, hair of exactly the same shade in a trim mass of curls, brown eyes behind brown lashes. Only on the lips was there color; the big, fine, sweet mouth that was always ready to laugh was a line of scarlet in the varied creams and tans.

INSTALLMENT II. A small, frail woman, with a white skin finely crinkled, and dark, wide eyes like Gloria's, her hair was bound into a net, her mouth and forehead disfigured with triangles of some wrinkle-eradicating plaster. Her hands were small and fine and heavily veined; she wore two big rings. She was enveloped in a beautiful silk robe cut in plain straight lines; a quilted silk comforter was drawn neatly up to her arm.

This morning she had changed her type of attack and was all the more powerful for being resigned and forlorn. "Gloria, I don't know why I want you to do things if you don't want to!" "And I've been wondering why I'm so made that I don't want to do them."

When the other girls called Gloria a beauty she quite honestly denied it; the molding and the coloring of her face made for beauty, but the features were irregular, the mouth too big, the space between the eyes too wide. But she had been known, in moments of extreme candor, to say that she "liked the way she looked," and she liked the way she looked this morning, loved the new suit and hat, even in every fiber of her in the delight of being just short of 20, and eager, and off to try for her first real job.

CUSTOMS OF SAVAGE TRIBES. I—Caring for the Hair. Some tribes of savage people spend a good deal of time taking off their hair. It is a fairly common custom in hot countries for the men to shave their heads. Often the shaving is done with the sharp edges of broken shells, but in other cases the hair is pulled out by the roots! If ever you have pulled a hair or two from your own head, you know it isn't the most pleasant thing to do. The savages, however, do not seem to mind the pain very much.

Tattooing is a favorite "beauty help" in many tribes, and this is true of both men and women. A common way of putting on the tattoo marks is with a tiny "rake." The little instrument has from three to 20 prongs. It is pressed through the skin, and is moved so as to make the outline of a design. Then coloring of some kind is pressed into the scratches. When the scratches heal, the skin closes over the coloring, and the color will not be washed away by rain.

A Papuan "dandy" on the island of New Guinea adorns his head with plumes. He smears his face and chest with oil, clay or soot. Often, but not always, he wears a shell "pendant" about seven inches long which has been stuck through the nose. A necklace made from the tails of pigs may add another touch to his decorations. The high feathers in the New Guinea head-dress make a man who wears it look taller than he really is.

TEAMSTERS MOVE TO EXTEND STRIKE ALONG WATERFRONT

AFL-CIO Co-operate Gingly in San Francisco Labor Day Parade.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—(AP) Most of unionism's two great factions here co-operated gingerly today in a Labor Day parade and then retired to separate camps to await the climax of the AFL teamsters' "finish fight" against CIO longshoremen and warehousemen.

All but one unit of the San Francisco teamsters boycotted the parade, which police estimated to embrace about 45,000 persons. Several other AFL unions also refused to participate because of the presence of CIO elements. Holiday schedules on the teamster-blockaded San Francisco waterfront made it difficult to determine the extent of cargo congestion but shipments continued to pile up steadily for lack of truck facilities.

The teamsters prepared to carry out their projected blockade of Oakland and other easy bay terminals beginning Wednesday, while their San Francisco leader, John P. McLaughlin, issued a statement asserting the CIO "must be eliminated from the labor picture if the laboring man is to get his just rights."

Whether the factional war would envelope all Pacific coast waterfronts was expected to become apparent later in the week with the arrival here of Dave Beck, Teamsters' International vice president, from Seattle.

Open Wednesday; Routes
Are Mapped.

Georgia's newly created highway patrol will actually begin operations throughout the state today with the opening of patrol barracks at Griffin. Barracks will be opened at Cartersville Wednesday.

Other barracks throughout the state will begin operations during the latter part of the week or early next week.

Members of the patrol of 80 are spending the last days in Atlanta mapping patrol routes for the various districts and receiving last-minute instructions.

Reporting for active duty at Griffin tomorrow will be Theodore P. Cross, Wilson D. Drew Jr., Jewell L. Fitch, Alvah H. Hooks, William E. McDuffie, Albert B. Myers, David F. Simmons and John H. Strickland.

Patrolmen to report Wednesday are George C. Alexander, Eugene S. Burke, Robert G. Goins, Burris J. Parkerson, George M. Stokes, James C. Walton and Leroy Wiggins.

PAGE URGES LABOR TO OUST AGITATORS

Workers Counseled Also To Respect and Protect Employer's Rights.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Sept. 6.—(P) Representative Stephen Pace, of the third Georgia district, in a prepared address here today, called on labor to add "common sense, patience, tolerance and understanding" to its "enthusiasm and determination."

He also urged workers to respect and protect the economic and constitutional rights of the employer.

"I refuse to believe that through organization or for human or sentimental reasons a man gains any right to become lazy, inefficient, disloyal, or to disregard his contracts," Representative Pace said.

"On the contrary, when through organization and legislation, we compel the employer to respect the human, the economic and the social rights and needs of the worker, in return the worker should respect and protect the economic and constitutional rights and needs of the employer."

In return for such loyalty, he said, "a profitable business should pay a profitable wage."

He asserted "free American labor should drive out the alien agitator" who would "make you like the regimented, ticketed, terrorized, and forced labor of Russia and Germany," and added:

"... If you enjoy the profits of your labor, if you fear God and love liberty, I call upon you to check your ranks and drive out any alien agitators who seek to arouse your passions to the point where you would destroy... the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

FOOD BY MAIL IN STRIKES HIT

Shipments to Closed Plants
Called 'Abnormal.'

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 6.—(P)—Food sent through the mail for men in a strike-closed plant surrounded by pickets is "abnormal mail" and need not be delivered, William W. Hovess, first assistant postmaster general, said here today.

"Letter carriers will not be used as police or soldiers in labor troubles," Hovess told the National Association of Letter Carriers.

"It would be just as reasonable to ask the mails to carry a new dynamo or a machine gun into a plant as the carload movement of meat and bread. Our stand is that we are handling the normal mail, not abnormal."

J. G. KYLE SERVICES TO BE HELD HERE

Atlanta Was Drowned on Fishing Excursion.

The body of J. G. Kyle, 42-year-old president of the Atlanta Concrete Pipe Company, who was drowned Sunday when he fell off a fishing boat in the Gulf of Mexico, 26 miles from the Florida coast, was brought to Atlanta yesterday for funeral services under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Burial will be in Knoxville, in which town Mr. Kyle was born and from which he moved about a year ago. A graduate of Lincoln Memorial University, he had served in the United States army during and after the World War.

He was entertaining a group of 20 Atlanta businessmen and government officials on a fishing party when he fell from the boat. His brother, J. Vernon Kyle, rescued him, but all efforts to revive the victim by artificial respiration failed.

LEONARD MARTIN RITES ARE HELD IN EAST POINT

The funeral of Leonard F. Martin, 42, who died Sunday, was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the chapel of A. C. Hemperley & Sons, East Point, with the Rev. W. S. Robison officiating. Burial was in College Park cemetery.

A fraternal and religious leader in East Point, where he lived at 907 Virginia avenue, Mr. Martin had resided there all of his life, being a clothing salesman at the time of his death.

Dalton Opens 100th Anniversary; Pageant To Feature Week's Fete

Varied Program Under Way as Center of Candlewick
Bedspread Industry Celebrates Its Century of Growth and Advancement.

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 6.—(P)—This northwest Georgia city of 14,000 persons is busy this week celebrating its one hundredth anniversary. Ceremonies began yesterday and will close with an air show at the Dalton airport next Sunday.

Highlight of the eight-day anniversary program will be the presentation Wednesday night of "Cavalade of Dalton," historical pageant depicting the city's growth. The pageant will be repeated Thursday and Friday nights. A centennial ball will be given after the pageant Friday night.

Industrial exhibits, a midway and the sixth annual invitation golf tournament at the Dalton Country Club also have place on the program.

When Dalton was incorporated, it was the only town of any size between Knoxville and Augusta, Chattanooga, then known as Ross Landing, and Marietta, that later was to become Atlanta, were only small clusters of cabins.

Today, Dalton is the home of the candlewick bedspread industry and the site of several large cotton mills and other manufacturing firms.

Visitors from throughout the state, their ranks made larger by guests from Tennessee, Alabama and the Carolinas, are joining in the city's birthday celebration.

DALTON ONCE KNOWN AS CROSS PLAINS

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 6.—Since its founding in 1837 as the village of Cross Plains, Dalton has grown from a settlement of a handful of families to a city of approximately 14,000 inhabitants, most of them native-born white Americans.

Dalton has nine public schools with an average enrollment of more than 3,000 pupils, and 16 churches, representing various denominations. Two large cotton mills, a hosiery mill, a chair factory, a jail works, a thread mill, two commercial printing plants, a tent and awning factory, four lumber mills, a brick and tile plant and other factories contribute to the city's industrial life.

Perhaps the city's largest industry is the manufacture of candlewick bedspreads. Dalton, center of this industry, now has more than 20 companies engaged in the business, employing directly and indirectly several thousand people.

In August, 1837, the first post-office was established at Cross Plains, now Dalton, with Ambrose McGhee as postmaster. In 1847, the name was changed to Dalton, and during that year Dalton was granted its charter by the state legislature.

Much of the land incorporated in the city limits was owned by a syndicate headed by Captain Edward White, and when the name was changed from Cross Plains, the town was named for Captain White's mother, whose maiden name was Mary Dalton.

In laying-out the town, spacious tracts were marked off for public parks, schools, churches and other buildings. Today, Dalton has a number of public parks and most of its streets are unusually wide, due to the foresight of the early settlers.

FIRE CHIEF FLAYS MAN'S CUSSINESS

Forest Control Official Says
Blazes Caused by Plain Meanness.

Plain, downright "human cussedness" causes many of the forest fires that destroy federal timber lands and the peace of mind of the forest service.

W. R. Paddock, regional fire control officer in charge of protecting 8,500,000 acres of national forests in 12 southeastern states, pointed yesterday to incendiarism as the principal cause of forest fires, and noted as a chief contributory factor to this cause: "Pure, human cussedness."

Such fires, he hastened to explain, were confined largely to the far reaches of the backwoods and almost always were started by persons of scant education.

"Incendiarism fires are the hardest to deal with," Paddock said. "They are started by persons who want to eradicate the tick, or stop the spread of malaria and typhoid fever, or want a good crop of grazing grass—and by pure, human cussedness."

"It seems that some people are just mean, and the handiness of a stand of timber, with inflammable underbrush, gives a good opportunity to express this meanness."

A two-year sentence usually follows a conviction of incendiarism involving a national forest, Paddock said. The extent to which lawlessness goes in causing forest fires is seen in the fact that 400 law enforcement cases were prosecuted in the southeast last year.

Paddock said there were 388 convictions.

YOUTHFUL ESCAPES HELD FOR THEFTS

Reformatory Fugitives Arrested in Connection With Four Auto Larcenies.

Three youths, who escaped the Hapeville Reformatory Sunday, were held by Atlanta police last night in connection with the theft of four automobiles.

The boys were arrested as they sat in a stolen auto on Luckie street yesterday. They are Howard Corley, 16, of 478 Venable street; Edward Grooms, 17, of 598 Capitol avenue, and Herschel Phillips, 16, who gave no address.

The auto, stolen near the junction of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, was the property of P.

E. Hanahan Jr., of the Pershing Point apartments. The other allegedly stolen cars were recovered on Camden road, N. E., on a tip furnished by Guy Holcomb, of 106 Camden road, to Sergeant J. J. Elliott, of the new state highway patrol.

In one of the autos, Sergeant Elliott found three brown "hats" similar to those worn by inmates of the reformatory and a check of numbers revealed the one numbered "98" had been issued to Phillips.

Other cars taken were reported belonging to J. I. Hutchinson, of Haralson, and Roy Workman Sr., of Huntington apartments. An attempt was made to steal a car owned by R. A. Workman Jr., of 1765 Peachtree road, police said.

Valuable papers and $50 cash were overlooked in the Hutchinson car, Elliott said.

Independence hall in Philadelphia is open daily to the public without charge.

KIWANIS WILL HEAR NANCE, JOHNSON TALK

A. Steve Nance, CIO leader, and Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, will be principal speakers at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at a forum luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Ansley hotel. The split in American labor ranks will be discussed by the two leaders of opposing factions, Nance talking on "The Committee for Industrial Organization," and Johnson on "The American Federation of Labor."

At other luncheon clubs today, John S. McClelland, solicitor of the Fulton criminal court, will address the Civilians at the Atlanta Athletic Club, while J. T. Marshall, senior supervisor of federal highways, will give "Some Facts About Federal Highway Aid" to the Lions Club at the Henry Grady hotel. The Rotary Club postponed its luncheon yesterday until September 13.

DICK was a religious man. He had a way with kids. He could cook, drive a car and tend furnace perfectly—the best hired man the Sheppertons ever had. What is the life of a CCC boy really like? How does he live, work, play? How strictly is he disciplined? Is this depression-born civilian army turning out more useful citizens? ## Snapshots Show Texas Home Of Popular Atlanta Bride-Elect

By Sally Forth.

IF YOU should glimpse popular Ida Nevin slipping snapshots out of her bag, during the series of luncheons, teas and dinners being given in her honor prior to her marriage to Robin Brookshire, she has every reason to do so. They are pictures of her apartment in Houston, where, after her wedding, Ida and Robin will reside. When Robin and Ida announced their engagement, Ida was consumed with curiosity as to where she would live in the Texas city. Robin described the place in a rather vague manner, and told his fiancée to be patient and that a detailed account would be given her in due time. Then a letter came and Ida tore it open to find a collection of Kodak pictures made of the exterior and interior of her future home on Rossmore boulevard. There were shots of the living room, dining room, den, bedroom, kitchen and bath. From the exterior view, Ida saw a portion of the building marked "X" which, according to Robin, "is our apartment." The latest letter from Robin to Ida (and the missives arrive every day) tells that her future husband is becoming very domestic-minded. He writes: "I have gone in for housekeeping in a big way, and today I bought a salt and pepper shaker!"

OUR hero, who had left his wife at a local hospital for a major operation, was returning to the hospital after taking his young son home. That she was already in the operating room, so he hurried up to the proper floor and waited outside the door.

Now Mr. Blank, as Sally will call our hero, was in a very disturbed state of mind, as is usual when a loved one is ill. He sat patiently outside the operating room door, hoping for the best.

Soon a white form was wheeled out, head covered, at its customary after one has taken an anesthetic. Mr. Blank slowly followed the stretcher down the hall. He had not seen the room before, but as he walked in he thought what a nice room it was. He had not met his wife's special nurse, either, but he thought what a capable looking person she was, as she greeted him.

So down sat Mr. Blank to wait until Mrs. Blank roused up enough to speak to him. He and the nurse engaged in conversation during the many, many minutes that passed.

"I think Dr. (perhaps we must call him Blank, too) is such a good surgeon," the nurse finally volunteered.

"I'm sure he is," answered our hero, never having heard of that particular man and wondering just why the nurse was bringing him into the conversation. "But I think Dr. So and So is splendid."

"Oh, yes," said the nurse politely, wondering why Mr. Blank seemed to think so much of a man he hadn't called in to operate upon his wife.

Well, to make a long story short, the nurse and Mr. Blank talked on and on, each making remarks the other couldn't quite understand. Sally thinks they probably would have been at it yet if the nurse hadn't suddenly called Mr. Blank by a name that wasn't his at all.

And then to his perfect amazement he found that he had followed the wrong patient from the operating room and that his wife, very much alone, was slowly coming from under the anesthetic in another room and wondering where upon earth her wandering husband could be!

Glimpsed here and there: Tucker Wayne lamenting the many difficulties of moving from one apartment to another. He and his bride, the former Virginia Courts, are in the midst of this undertaking and are staying with his parents while they do their transferring job.

Saturday, Tucker stated that with living three places at once, if he could just remember at which of them he left his shaving brush he believed he could go home and sleep in peace (but where was home!) . . . Chester Kitchens playing his guitar Sunday evening at the party Ida Akers gave for Nancy Moody's visitor, Mary Bland, of Louisville, Ky., as the guests crowded around and sang. This party also celebrated the birthdays of Ida, whose was Sunday, and Isabelle Boykin, whose was Saturday, and there was a birthday cake at each end of the buffet supper table—one for each girl.

SALLY knows you will be interested in hearing about the lovely blonde, a debutante of two years ago and one of two blonde sisters, who appeared at the Driving Club Saturday evening sporting her beautiful solitaire diamond engagement ring which she received last week. The lucky man is an attractive lawyer whose witty and charming personality has endeared him to many friends throughout the south, and the betrothal of this prominent pair will be made known within the next few weeks, Sally hears from the groom-to-be. How's your guessing this week?

The living room where the vows were spoken was decorated with a bank of palms before the mantel, in front of which were placed baskets of delphinium and tube roses, interspersed with candelabra, holding white tapers. Rev. W. M. Elliot Jr. read the marriage service in the presence of a limited group of friends and members of the families.

The bride, who was unattended, was smartly dressed in a powder blue dress worn with a navy blue coat. Her accessories were of navy and she wore a corsage of white orchids.

Mrs. Longley, mother of the bride, was gowned in a navy blue ensemble with navy accessories and her corsage was of purple orchids.

Miss Peggy O'Neill Becomes Bride Of Rudolf J. Block at Rectory

The marriage of Miss Peggy O'Neill, daughter of Mrs. Maymie O'Neill, to Rudolf J. Block, formerly of Louisville, Ky., was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the rectory of the Sacred Heart church before an assemblage of close friends and relatives. Rev. Father McGrath performed the ceremony which was preceded by a musical rendition by Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, harpist, and Charles Minor, violinist.

The bridal party entered the parlors of the rectory to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" through an aisle defined by wide white satin ribbon. Palms and foliage plants banked the improvised altar, with tall floor baskets filled with white gladioli and asters arranged at graceful intervals. Myriads of gleaming white tapers cast a soft glow over the beautiful scene.

Miss Mary James was the bride's only attendant and Walter C. Block, brother of the groom, was best man. Miss James wore a gown of black alpaca crepe, softly draped with white fringe. A softly becoming off-the-face hat of black felt completed her costume. Her corsage was of Talisman roses and valley lilies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Wiley C. O'Neill, was a striking figure in a smart original model of Nubian crepe faille, fashioned along the newest straight line silhouette and accentuated with effective diagonal tucks and narrow fringe, diagonally placed. Above the softly draped neckline the bride wore a gold necklace, a gift of the groom. Her hat was the new profile effect, worn with a shoulder length veil, and her accessories repeated the brown of hat and gown. A shoulder cluster of gardenias and valley lilies completed the costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Block left immediately after the ceremony on their wedding trip. They will return to Atlanta September 20 and will reside at 1078 Piedmont avenue.

Mrs. Louise Todd Wallace Goes Marketing in London

Former Atlantan Attends Kite-Flyers' Meet in Hyde Park

By LOUISE TODD WALLACE.
The American Battle Monuments Commission dedicated at Brookwood on the 15 of August the American five-acre section of the cemetery and the chapel as a memorial to the 600 American soldiers and sailors who were buried there during the war.

It is regretted that General Pershing was unable to be present. This news has reached America long since but I doubt if it is generally known that the presence in Westminster Abbey at the coronation, of General Pershing, marked the first appearance in England of the uniform of a full general in the American army.

It should not shock Peachtree (though it may) to hear that I go marketing in London, and that I enjoy it and the people there. Just off my important thoroughfare in a cross-road is a very unfashionable market (that is the reason I like it); never at its barrows or in its shops have I encountered a foreigner; I am, in a way, a sort of oddity to these cockneys who have lived their years in one quarter of a great city.

Mike is very amusing. A sign on his Williams bears posted "The best Williams in London." He notices my smile and being Irish to the bone told me, "One of my customers said I must be an American, I am so modest."

He has an uncle in Boston who is a policeman. Of course I should know him, as Georgia can't be so far away.

At the vegetable barrow are Rose and Jack. Rose is small, dark and smiling and she gives a merry greeting. Jack is big, tall, fair and silent. Upon my recent return I saw that there has come to these two another interest in life save vegetables. Across, by the pub, in a sort of improvised perambulator, I caught sight of as lovely a blue-eyed baby as could be found in any land. As is the manner of females, since time was, I admired this child and being "true American style"—a very un-English outburst—"class, you know, still foreigners are different," Jack may have reasoned. But he forgave me and became extremely human, he took Jack Junior in his arms and held him to his heart in an embrace that was all warmth and tenderness, then his long reserve broke as he said, "He is a likely blighter."

Of course, I like going to market, it gives me something I'd never get at pink tea!

Louise is the maid who attends to my needs in my service flat, she, too, is one of my London joys. "Louise," I asked, "Where is Arthur, there is a new boy in the lift?"

"I'm," she replied, "Sacked 'e ar and serves 'im jolly well right, bringing them commun American ways 'ere; 'e was caught chewing gum." Louise is used to the "gentry," and like you and me, dislikes vulgarity.

My evening paper man also has a part in my life. A day or two ago when I passed for my paper he was not at his usual pitch. I saw him later, and said I was afraid he might have changed.

"What time was it, mam?" "About 4 o'clock."

"Oh! man, I had gone for me cup o' tea."

I have a tremendous interest in people.

Sunday afternoon I went to Hyde Park and sat in the sun watching the crowd. I chose as a place for my chair the border of the green that is given over to kite-flyers and where the "Congress of Dogs" holds its meetings.

Presently from my point of view, I saw where I had my chair, I saw rising from the ground a most unusual "beast of a kite." What could it be with eyes protruding, neck of tremendous girth, and a belly that swelled with each gust of the wind? "Mum, did you see that?" No other than a caricature of the "brave man" of Italy! And surprisingly resembling.

(May I add a foot-note here? I was annoyed to learn that the meaning of "Mon Dieu" has been misunderstood. It does not mean "My God," but is an expression equivalent to "good gracious" or "heavens." The French use it constantly (so do I—) but "dieu" is never said. It is profane, the same as "My God" in English).

From this grotesque kite I got the notion to pop off in search of Ras Prince Monolulu.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Monday.—The other day I wrote a word in praise of Eve Curie's life of her mother, but I had not entirely finished it. I have finished it now and I must speak of it again, for it seems to me no one should miss reading it. The tears went on with her work and died as well as she could to make it worthy of him.

One other thing I hope many people will note, the little conversation on whether they should keep their secret as regards the process used in finding radium, or give it to the world. The instinctive reaction of both of them, that to give all the knowledge they had was the only scientific way, is an illuminating revelation of their thought.

Their shrinking from the mere meeting of people for the sake of saying you had met them, their dislike of the mere empty formalities which were offered them as honors, strike me as a lesson many of us should learn. These people were busy with such great things could not spare the time to be praised, they could not spare the time for genuine love, friendship and helpfulness.

The little story of the dinner with the French president, when Madame Curie was asked by Madame Loubet if she would like to be presented to the King of Greece, and answered frankly that she saw little use in it, made me chuckle and yet sigh, for how many people have been presented to the kings and queens of the world when there was little use in it. But how few people look at it from this point of view.

I cannot help hoping this life will be shown on the screen. Last year, when I saw the life of Pasteur, I felt it was a great picture and I felt that the material in this story is even more arresting and moving.

This being a holiday, I will tell you that while my husband is cruising on the water, I am cruising a little on the land, visiting one or two of my friends and having a very pleasant time. I was much amused to see a photograph in one of the papers of three ladies sailing for Europe. The names of the ladies were under the picture and one of them was designated as my secretary. I fear the lady must be much annoyed, for her affiliation with the White House staff is on the President's side. On the other hand, my real secretary is tapping away at her typewriter day after day. I haven't been able to drive her away for a holiday, though she certainly deserves it.

These little inaccuracies are apt to occur, but they amuse me a little when I know how many people are apt to accept the printed word as gospel truth. I will be getting letters for days saying, that since my secretary is away, I cannot have received such and such information which has been sent me, or my correspondents will regret they wrote to a secretary who has gone to Europe and feel they must now write again.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

SEPTEMBER THE MONTH TO GET BACK IN SHAPE.
Everybody from Maine to California goes in for slimming in September. It's practically a national fast time! Business takes stock in January, but women take stock of their figures in the fall.

Well and good! Light menus are just what you need after a summer of careless eating, but let the faddy reducing diets alone! In slimming down to improve your appearance, you must protect your health and beauty. Of course, you want the scales to respond in a hurry, and you can safely lose from three to five pounds the first week on a regime of fruits and vegetables—and feel better. This diet, which is to be followed for two or three days, is a tonic to your system. Eve's famous diet is an altogether healthful and effective starting point for a figure program.

The fruit and vegetable menus are free from starch, fat and protein. Don't worry, you'll lose weight! The first three days are the hardest—you'll be hungry on less than 800 calories a day. These unsatisfied hunger pangs, however, enable you to shrink your stomach and to get your appetite under control.

Send for the beginner's reducing material, the leaflet "Dodging the Calories." This leaflet will be helpful in getting good start on your slimming. Enclose a stamped return envelope addressed to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Enduring investment of time, talent and money is one of the engaging tasks of daily life. One of the wisest suggestions along this line that I have come upon in many days is the following paragraph from Dr. Charles M. Sheldon.

"To have a good time at the expense of an uneasy conscience does not pay. Nor does it pay to lose our temper at the expense of losing a friend; to cheat a corporation at the expense of robbing our own souls; to go to church in the morning and to the devil in the evening; to have an enemy when we might have had a friend; to sow wild oats when we have to reap their harvest; to spend the last half of life in remorse and regret for the follies of the first half; to be discourteous, irreverent, cynical, cruel, or vulgar; to give God the hush instead of the heart; to live at all unless we live for all."

I have read and reread that paragraph, and my wish today for every boy and girl in Georgia would be that they might take to heart the sound teaching of these words from the pen of Dr. Sheldon. Youth responds always to positive suggestions, but youth also needs guidance of friendly and sympathetic warning, and these words will render such a service to all who sincerely study them.

There is a happy plan abroad in many of our homes and schools whereby boys and girls are encouraged to keep a savings box at hand into which they will drop a penny or a nickel or even a dime each day, thus learning the value of thrift and of preparation for the days ahead. Wouldn't it be a fine thing if we might also have a treasure chest for life into which we would daily seek to make a deposit of character—resolving every day to do the right thing in a given situation, and arriving at what is the right thing to do by taking to heart the teachings of God and the best people we can discover?

Pleasant Homes

YOUTHFUL CAREFREE CHARM

They are refurbishing with Federal American reproductions which are descendants of the Georgian English designs.

They were a gay pair who didn't know straight up when they furnished their first little place. So it turned out to be something of a hodge-podge even if it did have a youthful, carefree charm. But not at all what they wanted by the time they were thirty and on the sophisticated side. So now they're weeding out.

"We are refurbishing gradually with Federal American reproductions," wrote Ellen B., "but we can't do it all at once. And we need ideas on how to proceed. So far we are concentrating on the living room where we have a dull gray-green broadloom rug, a Virginia sofa in brown colonial tapestry with small flowers, a mulberry chair, a brown chair, a green club chair, a pull-up chair with a black horse hair seat. The woods are dark mahogany and the lamps are white—walls will be refinished in white or cream—which would be best? Would you please make suggestions for draperies and curtains, a new cover for the brown chair, a new slip cover for the green club chair? What type of pictures would you suggest?"

A Prescription.

Let's see—you'll be retaining the dull green rug, the brown sofa, the mulberry wing chair, the black horsehair and the white lamp. We'd prefer off-white walls with the softest of gray-green wall silk for draperies over off-white glass curtains. Then for the two chairs to be recovered, select a Williamsburg type of chintz with a sprawling pattern in parchment colorings, and have drab green welting and for each chair a little round cushion in the same gray-green. As for pictures, nothing would be more suitable than reproductions of old portraits, Gilbert Stuarts, for instance, in heavy gold frames. And you'll probably want a convex mirror with an eagle perching over the oval gilt frame. This type of room has a certain formality, so that accessories should have some dignity and poise. That's why silver in the Sheffield type of designs would be so graciously appropriate, too.

CLAIMS SETTLED FOR OCEAN MAIL

U. S. Pays Only $935,000 on $75,000,000 Demand.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission announced today that claims of 24 ocean mail contractors against the government exceeding $75,000,000 had been settled for less than $935,000.

The claims grew out of cancellation of contracts under provisions of the merchant marine act of 1936. This act abolished the old contract system and set up an operating subsidy plan instead.

Commission Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy said Attorney General Cummings had approved the settlements, thereby finally terminating all differences between the government and contractors involved.

He said that the government would save approximately $3,000,000 from June 30, 1937, to next January 1 on the contracts under the new plan.

BRITAIN LAUDED

Coughlin Approves Default on War Debts.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Father Coughlin said in an interview today that Great Britain was right in not paying her war debt.

"Great Britain didn't pay loans extended to her by the United States but spent the money to build suitable homes for her laboring classes and she should be congratulated for placing human rights before financial rights," the Catholic churchman said.

"She was right in not paying, for most of these loans are merely bookkeeping entries."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Problems of general interest submitted by readers and discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name will be confidential. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Together with failure in crops and small prices received for farm products, our family cannot meet its obligations. We live on a small farm which my husband worked until he lost his health. Since then we have depended upon hired help outside while I have done all the work inside for a family of five. Three children of school age require a lot of sewing in addition to the regular household chores. I am not sick but frail and when evening comes I am too exhausted to be anything of a companion to husband or children. If I do say it, I have made a good showing with small amount of money and our friends have no idea what our financial condition is. An opportunity turns up for me to take a position outside which will lighten the financial stringency and enable me to hire a maid and come out of the kitchen. Won't you advise me whether or not my plan is in my home.

ANSWER:
It sounds like a heaven-sent opportunity for you to get some recreation, conserve your health, lift a crushing financial burden from your husband's shoulders and make a big contribution to the pleasure of your home. Why let a traditional sentiment about a woman's place being in the home keep you from grasping the opportunity?

Maybe a woman's place is in the home when the husband has his health and can produce the cash to feed and clothe the family, keep a firm foundation under the set-up and repair the leaking roof. Regardless of whether or not the conditions are ideal, obligations must be met and if the wife can work in an office and help with the program there shouldn't be anybody to say her nay.

Many a woman has gone into an office and discovered that she had a latent talent for business which put her family on easy street. In any event, the experiment is worth trying because it will let you out of the kitchen, vary the monotony of your drab life, enable you to entertain the family with diverting chatter of what you have seen and heard, the people you have met. Not to mention the pay envelope which will buy the coffee and sugar to go with the cream that the family cow provides.

EDWARD, WALLY LEARN ABOUT PIGS

Royal Pair Also Taught of Paintings, Baking.
NOETSCH, Austria, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor learned something of pigs, paintings and breadmaking on a farewell visit today to Alfred Wiegels, the versatile village baker.

In addition to delivering the Windsors' breakfast rolls every morning of their honeymoon at Wasserloeben castle, Wiegels often returned of afternoons to trounce the Duke at tennis.

The visit was in the midst of his work today when the Windsors unexpectedly called, so he took them around his little shop, showing them first hand how their morning rolls had been made.

Then he displayed paintings by his brother, Professor Karl Wiegels, which the Duchess admired so much she said she would sit for her portrait "when we return next year."

Wiegels next revealed his pride and joy—his pig sty—expatiating on the merits of his fat porkers Arabella and Zaphronia.

COMPOSER DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

Born in Somerville, Mass., in 1871, Hadley studied music in Boston, later continuing his study in Vienna.

At various times he was conductor or associate with the Seattle symphony, San Francisco orchestra, New York Philharmonic orchestra, Manhattan symphony and the Pennsylvania orchestra of Philadelphia.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Inez Barbour Hadley, widely known concert soprano, and his mother, Mrs. Samuel Henry Hadley, of Boston.

ARGENTINA ELECTION CLAIMED BY EACH SIDE

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The conservative government coalition party expressed confidence tonight that its candidate, Dr. Roberto M. Ortiz, was elected president of Argentina with about 250 out of 476 electoral votes in Sunday's election.

The opposition radical party, however, claimed a victory also for its candidate, former President Marcelo De Alvear.

Home Institute YOU CAN BE A PERFECT DANCER BY PRACTICING AT HOME

Nobody envies poor Bill and his partner. For men flock to dance with a girl who's alive, buoyant—who doesn't have to be pushed around.

How to have this airy grace that wins partners? A few evenings' practice at home—according to the instructions of a well-known teacher will make you light of foot. Begin by taking long backward steps. Learn to keep your weight on the forward foot until the ball of the other foot is firmly on the ground. Then when your partner dips in the Westchester or tango you don't lose your balance—or tumble about like the girl in the sketch. You easily keep one leg a straight, graceful line, dip lightly with the other.

You have to be easy to lead, too, to be popular with the boys. So keep your weight off your heels in your backward steps. Dance springily on the balls of your feet.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

A GADABOUT'S NOTEBOOK.
HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3.—The only woman in whom William Powell has evinced interest since the death of Jean Harlow is Azadia Newman, socialite portrait painter from Washington. Bill has visited Miss Newman several times at her Hollywood apartment and is reportedly very smitten with her brunette charms. He has advised her to accept one of the many film offers she has received since coming here to paint portraits of several film stars, but Azadia is too ambitious—she wants $3,000 a week.

Rumors of romance between Garbo and Leopold Stokowski are without foundation. In the first place, the maestro still has a perfectly legal wife. But, apart from that, Greta has not cared for any male since George Brent stopped calling at her home. . . . Claudette Colbert is again sick at home with a cold. Meanies are saying that the chief reason she married Dr. Joel Pressman was to have a sinus expert always handy. . . . The Marian Marsh-Al Scott engagement has been broken by mutual consent. . . . W. C. Fields is exceedingly irked by the restrictions imposed on his weekly broadcasts and may quit any Sunday. Which would be a great pity.

Do not believe the printed nonsense making Barbara Stanwyck Mrs. Robert Taylor in a secret ceremony before Bob sailed for England. Taylor told me a few weeks ago that he is postponing marital bliss until the lady fans tire of his handsome profile—and the reputed hair on his chest. . . . There are three reasons why the Jean Harlow estate was mere $41,000. (A) She was unmarried, which meant paying more income tax than wedded stars. (B) She had a flair for bad investments. And (C) Jean was addicted to games of chance that usually went against her. Added to this, she was very generous to charitable causes. . . . Eddie G. Robinson is peeved by the story going around town that he is high-handed on "The Last Gangster" set at Metro. Personal observation has always found him charming and considerate to co-workers. . . . Hollywood, says an unemployed ex-star, is more full of hope than charity.

If you like Bobby Bren, you will be interested in his four-day personal appearance price—$5,000 a week. He starts at the Palace in Chicago, the week of September 10. . . . It is practically sure that M.-G.-M. will finally listen to reason and lend Clark Gable to Selznick International for the top role in "Gone With the Wind." Particularly as the picture will be released through M.-G.-M.—according to current negotiations.

Fernand Gravet, in Europe, held a story conference with Mervyn Le Roy yesterday via trans-Atlantic telephone for one hour and a half. Gravet reversed the charges. . . . Irene Dunne motoring through the wilds of Washington and Canada with husband, Dr. Griffiths. . . . Evelyn Brent is making a comeback to pictures with the second feminine lead opposite John Barrymore in "City Hall Scandal."

Peter Lorre, who is still aching to portray Napoleon on the stage or screen, will probably go over to the side of the enemy as Louis XVI, opposite Norma Shearer, in "Marie Antoinette."

Ben Hecht, Hollywood's highest-paid writer, told the story of how he gyped himself out of $8,000. A few years ago, Howard Hughes asked him to rewrite a script for $25,000. Hecht refused. "But I'll tell you what," he said. "I'll do it for $1,000 a day if you pay me in cash each day." Hughes agreed, started him on a given day, but sent the director over to keep the writer's nose to the grindstone. Consequently, Hecht finished the script in 17 days and collected $17,000 instead of the $25,000. "But it was worth it—to see the cash every day," says Ben.

BREAKING UP MALARIA.

Southern correspondent writes that malaria is very prevalent in his community and they do not have much success breaking it up. In many cases it has been of long duration. He asks how much quinine a malaria victim should receive for how long and "all necessary information."

Sounds as though the doctors never venture into such dangerous territory! Or maybe somebody down there had a doctor once and the doctor failed to cure him! Or again, can it be that we are so all-fired smart here in print that real doctors out on the firing lines look dumb?

Quinine is universally acknowledged the cure for malaria. How much quinine, how often to administer it, for how long a period, are questions on which there may be some difference of opinion among physicians.

Dean Bass, of Tulane, recognized as a world authority, has advocated what has come to be known as the standard quinine treatment followed by many of the best physicians. Physicians employing the standard quinine treatment, giving the chills and fever patient thirty (30) grains of quinine a day in doses of 5 to 10 grains every three hours, as long as the chills and fever last, and after that ten (10) grains of quinine a day for the next eight weeks, find that this treatment cures most cases.

The Malaria Commission of the League of Nations, and the United States Public Health Service advocate what is known as the short quinine treatment. Physicians following this plan give the chills and fever patient twenty (20) grains of quinine a day for from five to seven days, and then no more quinine unless the malaria returns.

There is no particular reason why either plan should be rigidly adhered to in every instance. Indeed, it would be better if the physician were to modify the plan of treatment according to the progress of the case, the results he is able to observe, and the individual patient's tolerance. Some persons can take standard doses of quinine without discomfort or untoward effect; others are apt to experience some of the familiar by-effects, such as fullness in the head, roaring in the ears, dizziness, disturbance of vision, taste on smell, headache, after comparatively small doses.

The Canal Zone treatment of malaria has been fifteen (15) grains of quinine three times a day for a week or until temperature remains normal for a week, then ten (10) grains three times a day for 10 or 12 days.

Although malaria, like most parasitic diseases, is usually mild in character, it must be remembered that there are more than 4,000 deaths from malaria reported annually, and probably a minority of cases are reported as malaria. Quinine is the specific cure and should be used to the full extent of its curative power notwithstanding the disadvantages mentioned.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Otosclerosis.

Inherited progressive deafness, physicians call it otosclerosis. Once you said the least treatment to ear and adjacent structures the better and that the greatest promise lies in efforts to improve general hygiene and nutrition. You recommended foods containing vitamin A. You suggested an iodine ration. My physician prescribes about small doses of iodine for me. (A. B.)

Answer—Now I'd amend that to read vitamin D—an optional ration of vitamin D daily to supplement a diet which includes adequate proportions of "protective" foods: milk, eggs, greens, eggs, fresh nuts. If a thousand readers with otosclerosis would take the iodine ration for a year or so and send us reports of their experience we might have some idea whether that is of real benefit.

Infantile Paralysis.

Grandson, 19, graduated from high school last June. Just returned from a summer camp with infantile paralysis. He has received serum, and is now on hard bed with sandbags to prevent movement. . . . We have read about Dr. . . . success. (A. C.)

Answer—The chap whose name you mention is not a physician. His success is in getting his business exploited in the papers. By letter I am sending the name and address of a physician near you who is thoroughly competent to treat your grandson.

Tired Feeling.

Toward late afternoon I get so tired I can hardly keep going. I think I read in your column about a woman taking two grains of quinine three times a day for tired feeling. Is that all right? (A. R. C.)

Answer—First, you should have a physical examination by your doctor to find out what is the matter. I think the quinine would be harmless if you want to try it, but I would suggest rather a copy of irradiated yeast tablets and the iodine ration. Send three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for taking the iodine ration.

CAIN AND ABEL ARE 'ABSOLVED'

Story of Fight and Murder Is Questioned.

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 6.—(P)—Cain and Abel, two fellows who are supposed to have invented fighting, were absolved today by Professor S. H. Hooke, of Kings College, London.

"I want to point out," he told the British Association for the Advancement of Science, "that Cain's slaying of Abel was not a jealous murder but a ritual for increasing the fertility of the soil."

The professor said that Cain and Abel, in the first place, had nothing to do with the Garden of Eden or Adam and Eve, and in the second place, he doubted that they even were brothers.

"Recent finds in North Syria," dating from about the second millennium B. C., he said, "show that it was a ritual to kill a sheep at the time of the summer drought and that Cain probably worshipped by killing Abel, thus presumably helping the soil."

Mrs. Copeland has been an active member of the alumnae chapter for several years, having served as treasurer and vice president in charge of the philanthropic work of the sorority. ## GIANTS DEFEAT PHILLIES TWICE AND GAIN GAME

Schumacher Hurts 5-Hitter for New Yorkers; Fette Wins.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lefty Lee Grissom, Cincinnati's star freshman, held the Cubs to one hit yesterday, but he was beaten, 2 to 1, in the second game of a holiday double-header before 29,694. The victory ended a losing streak for the Chicagoans that had reached five straight when Paul Derringer beat them, 7 to 3, in the opener. The even split sent the Cubs back to three full games behind the league-leading Giants.

Hal Schumacher's five-hit hurling gave the Giants a 2-3 victory and a sweep of a double bill with the Phillies before 40,000 fans. The league leaders took the opener, 6-2, behind Cliff Melton and added a full game to their league lead as the Cubs bowed to Cincinnati. Johnny McCarthy, New York first sacker, slammed a homer in each game.

Lou Fette's eight-hit pitching earned the Boston Bees a 6-4 victory in the second game and an even break in a holiday double-header with the Dodgers before 12,000 fans. The Dodgers took the 10-inning opener behind Luke Hamlin, Bill Weil.

Lefty Bob Weland pitched the Cardinals to a 4-to-1 victory over Pittsburgh in the first game of a double bill, but the Bucs came back to win the second, 5-4, on Vaughn's homer.

PHIBUS PERMITS ONLY ONE BLOW IN 1ST ATTEMPT

Yankees Take Twin Bill From A's; Bob Feller Wins.

By THE UNITED PRESS.

The New York Yankees yesterday celebrated the labor holiday by taking both ends of a double-header from the Philadelphia Athletics to keep their 11-Game American League lead intact.

They won the opener, 6-1, putting on a five-run burst in the fourth inning. Joe DiMaggio climaxed the rally by hitting his 40th home run with two mates aboard. Bump Hadley scored his 10th victory, limiting the A's to six hits. A double by Bill Dickey broke the Athletics' lead in the fifth inning. The Yankees won the 2-1 aftermatch. Paul Andrews went the route for New York, pitching a three-hitter.

Chicago and Cleveland split a pair, the opener going to the White Sox, the nightcap to the Indians, by identical scores 2-1. Walker's double drove home the winning run for the Sox as the veteran Ted Lyons held the Tribe to five hits in the first game. Bob Feller did out four safeties and fanned nine in scoring his sixth win in the second.

Feller tripled and scored the run that won his own game. Washington and Boston also divided but the feature of their double-program was the one-hit masterpiece turned in by Senator Rube Bressler from Chattanooga, in the winnow after the Red Sox had put on a four-run rally in the eighth to win the first game, 6-2. Phebus scored a 2-0 shutout for Washington in the second. A single by Desautels robbed the rookie right-hander from a place in baseball's hall of fame.

Lefty Grove scored his 14th victory in the opener. Detroit conquered twice, defeating the St. Louis Browns 10-9 and 5-2. Pete Fox's double driving in the St. Louis in the ninth gave the Tigers a 10-9 victory. Fox allowed but six hits to score his 10th win in the second game. Fox and Greenberg homered for Detroit in the nightcap.

SENATORS 2-1; RED SOX 6-2.

2. A group of 45 cartoons will be released. Each cartoon will contain two balloons for conversation. One of the balloons, however, will be left blank. The contestant is to supply the missing conversation for the blank balloon, using not over 12 words.
3. OLD GOLD will pay a First Prize of $100,000.00 and 999 other cash prizes (a grand total of 1,000 prizes aggregating $250,000.00) in the order of value, to the one thousand contestants who write the missing conversation for the 45 cartoons and whose statements are considered original and best in the opinion of the judges, and who in all other ways conform with these Official Rules. The prizes will be awarded such contestants in the order of the merit of their statements as designated by the judges. The judges' decision will be final.
4. The cartoons will be issued in weekly Series of three, and contestants are asked to supply the required statements and submit them EACH WEEK. The 1st Week's Series of 3 cartoons bears the release date of Saturday, Sept. 4, 1937. Each Saturday, for fourteen additional weeks, there will be another weekly Series to answer. Contestants should supply the required statements and submit them weekly, during the week following issuance date of each Series. In submitting the answers for any current Series, a contestant is privileged to submit statements for preceding Series. Thus, a contestant entering the contest during the 2nd Week should submit both the 1st Week's Series as well as the 2nd Week's Series; and a contestant entering the 3rd Week should submit both the 1st and the 2nd Weeks' Series as well as the 3rd Week's Series; and so on. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made.

Either will be equally acceptable. It is not necessary to make a purchase in order to compete.
